The King passed the night at Torrione among the encamped troops.

THE LONDON TIMES ON THE BATTLE OF MONTEBELLO.

The London Times makes the following remarks on the late battle of Montebello: "On the whole, however, this must be considered a fair account of the battle. The Austrians confess to a loss of 294 killed, 718 wounded and 283 missing—in all close on 1,300, of whom 200 are prisoners. The French state their loss at about 700, an estimate not so unreasonably low as to excite suspicion, and which we may accept as fairly accurate. The result of the battle is honorable to the French, and it will be for the Austrians to show, if they can, in future engagements, that the success of their enemies was due, not to superior military qualities, but only to the uncertain fortune of war."

MARITIME PRIZES CAPTURED BY THE FRENCH.

The Pomone captured, and towed into Tenedos, an Austrian bark, name unknown.

Great Britain.

The Times says: "At a meeting of the House of Commons Tuesday, May 31, the reëlection of Mr. Speaker Denison will be proposed by Mr. Wilson Patten, and seconded by Sir Francis Baring. No opposition is anticipated."

The new House of Commons, on meeting to-day, were summoned to the House of Peers, and on their return proceeded to elect a Speaker. Moved that the Right Hon. John Evelyn Denison be again called to fill the office. There being no dissentient voice he was reëlected. The House adjourned at 3 P. M. The London Times says: "The address in reply to the Royal speech will be moved by the Hon. Algernon Egerton, M. P., and will be seconded by Sir James Elphinstone, M. P. We (Times) have authority to state that the House of Lords will not sit upon Thursday, it being Ascension Day, Peers cannot, therefore, be sworn on that day."

"The Empress and Court are about to retire to St. Cloud. Her Majesty presided again to-day (Sunday) at a Cabinet Council."

Prince Napoleon's army corps is now complete and prepared for campaigning. This division of the French army has received marching orders, and will begin to operate immediately.

The Times Correspondent says:

"It is believed that as soon as the French enter Milan the most strenuous efforts of England and Prussia will be turned to effecting some arrangement between the Powers to put an end to the war."

A letter from Toulon of the 27th informs us that the greatest activity prevails in that port. Admiral Bouet Willaumez, who has been appointed to the command of the flotilla laden with siege artillery, is expected to sail daily.

The London Post says:

"It appears the Governments of England and France have the same ideas about how to treat the Neapolitan difficulty. It is quite possible that the proclamation of the King will prevent any attempt at renewing diplomatic relations for the present."

The Times says it is not surprising that trade is dull in Paris when the uncertainty of the duration of the war is considered.

The Paris flour market was firm.

Austrian Account of the Battle of Montebello.

The Vienna Gazette publishes the official report, by General Count Gyulai, of the action at Montebello. The following is a full translation:

HEAD-QUARTERS, GARLASCO, Monday, May 23.

YOUR MAJESTY: I hasten humbly to address to your Majesty a report of the first great combat which the troops of your Majesty have sustained in the present war. As has already been shown by the incomplete reports which serve as elements for this one, all the detachments of the brave army engaged in the fight gave brilliant proofs of courage and firmness.

As I already announced on the 9th of the present month, by telegraph, to your Majesty's First Adjutant-General, I ordered, on the 20th, a grand reconnaissance on the right bank of the Po, because the information I received from the outposts established along the Sesia and the Po led to the belief that the enemy, in strong force, projected a movement against Piacenza by Voghera.

With this object, three brigades of the 5th corps d'armée were advanced on the night of the 19th from Pavia towards the tête-du-pont of Vaccarizza, where Boer's brigade, belonging to the 3d corps, was already stationed.

For this expedition I gave the command of the Fifth Corps to Lieutenant-Field-Marshal Urban, who had previously examined the ground between Stradella, Vaccarizza and Voghera, and who was stationed with a brigade of the Ninth Corps (Major-General Braum) and one of his own reserve divisions (Major-General Schaffgotsche) between the tête-du-pont of Vaccarizza and Broni.

The expedition commanded by Lieutenant-Field-Marshal Count Stadion consisted, then, of Paumgarten's division (brigades Gaal, Bils, and Prince of Hesse) of the 5th Corps; Braum of the 9th; and two battalions of Boer's brigade of the 8th Corps, as also the troops of the garrison of Piacenza, (Hesse Regiment,) instead of the detachment of Schaffgotsche's brigade, left behind.

Lieutenant-Field-Marshal Stadion commenced his movement in advance on the morning of the 20th, starting from the tête-du-pont.

Lieutenant-Field-Marshal Urban had advanced on the high road towards Casteggio, the Third Battalion of Chasseurs skirting the mountain. Lieutenant-Field-Marshal Paumgarten followed in the plain, with Bils' brigade marching on Casatisma, and with Gaal's brigade on Robecco. His reserve, two and a half battalions strong, and the artillery train, advanced towards Barbianello. The Prince of Hesse's brigade formed the right wing, and marched on Branduzzo, passing through Verrua. Lieutenant-Field-Marshal Stadion's orders were, that after this movement, which ought to be completed at 11 o'clock, the attack should take place at noon. Lieutenant-Field-Marshal Urban was to carry Casteggio and Montebello, so as to have a basis to threaten Voghera, and thus force the enemy to display his strength. Major-General Gaal was to follow Lieutenant Field-Marshal Urban as a reserve. As soon as the enemy had hastily evacuated Montebello, Lieutenant-Field-Marshal Urban pushed on to Genestrello, where he found the enemy in superior force, and encountered a sanguinary defence, which, however, the brave Jagers of the Eighth and Fourth Battalions of the regiments Hesse and Dom Miguel bravely overcame, and, despite considerable loss, took possession of the heights and Place of Genestrello.

The enemy, however, soon displayed a superior force, which was continually increased by arrivals by the railway, so that Lieutenant-Field Marshal Urban's and Gaal's brigade, which had come to his assistance, were compelled, after great loss, but heroic fighting, to fall back on Montebello. Meantime Lieutenant-Field-Marshal Stadion had brought up Bil's brigade and Hesse's brigade closer to the right wing of the line of battle. The enemy now displayed an overwhelming force against Major-General Gaal and General Braum, with one battalion of Hesse and one battalion of Rossbach. After an obstinate fight Montebello was evacuated. The enemy, who had suffered considerably, was kept in check by the good appearance of our troops, and by the position taken by Brigadier Bil's reserve, and made no pursuit. The corps, scarcely molested in Casteggio, reached the tête du pont at nightfall, and on the 21st halted on the other bank of the Po.

According to the reports, which are not yet complete, the following troops were engaged at Genestrello under Lieut.-Field-Marshal Urban: The third battalion of Jagers, the third battalion of Dom Miguel, two battalions of Rossbach, one Grenadier battalion, Hesse, two 6-pounders, four 12-pounders, of the Eighth Regiment, and a division of Haller's Hussars. It was here the fight was most sanguinary and the greatest loss incurred, the enemy being three times our strength. At Montebello the troops engaged were: Two and a half companies of Rossbach, one battalion Grenadiers; second battalion of Hesse's Infantry, two battalions Archduke Charles' Infantry; one battalion Granger; one squadron Haller's Hussars; four 6-pounders and two 12-pounders. The troops engaged at Genestrello, when they retreated, came upon a superior force of the enemy, and had to sustain a second encounter.

The Prince of Hesse, who commanded the Regiment Culoz, (Transsylvanians,) a battalion of Zobel (recruits of Arad, in Hungary,) and three squadrons of Sicily Lancers, engaged the enemy at Calcababbio (a little to the west of Casatisma) and Cassove de Lanzi. Several times during the action our infantry attacked the enemy cavalry with the bayonet, and threw them into disorder. It also repeatedly happened that the troops, when advancing to the attack, reserved their fire until they were within thirty paces of the enemy. The hussars and Lancers made the most dexterous use of their different weapons. As our artillery advanced quite close to the enemy, its effect was quite terrible. Very few of our men were wounded by the cannon of the enemy, who fired over their heads. The enemy's infantry fired well. The report relative to his cavalry is less favorable. It was not equal to our Hussars and Lancers, and avoided every serious attack.

As the thunder of the cannon had brought Lieutenant-General Cheinneville from Broni, where he was with a part of the Brigade Fehlmayer, towards Casteggio, Lieutenant-General Stadion posted him at Santa Giuletta, in order that he might, if necessary, support the Brigade Bils, which had to cover the retreat. As there was no pursuit, General Cheinneville returned in the evening to Stradella. During the advance and retreat General Prince von Hesse effectually protected the right flank of the corps.

It appears that we were opposed to the whole corps d'armée of Baraguay d'Hilliers and a Piedmontese brigade. According to the reports received the French had 12 regiments of the line, some battalions of Chasseurs, and one regiment of cavalry in action, and the Sardinians one brigade and the cavalry regiment "Novara." The reserves, which were very powerful, were continually reinforced. Field-Marshal-Lieutenant Stadion estimates the force of the enemy at 40,000 men at least. The sacrifice of life was great, but the information required by the reconnaissance is extremely satisfactory. I am still in expectation of the detailed reports. Count Stadion speaks highly of the bravery of all the troops engaged. When the detailed reports are sent in I will make known to your Majesty the names of the persons who particularly distinguished themselves.

Unfortunately the sacrifice of life during this glorious battle was very great. 600 wounded men, 20 of whom were officers, were brought to Pavia. Major Buttner, of the general staff, which was on a special mission at Vaccarizza, and took part in the expedition, and Major Cantre, of the third Jager Battalion, were killed. Lieutenant-Colonel Spielberger, and Major Pires, (this officer, who had his arm shot off, was probably taken prisoner by the French,) of the "Archduke Charles," are probably dead, as they fell wounded on the field of battle.

I am proud to be able to say that the troops have, by their spirit and courage, proved that they are worthy of your Majesty's favor, and any expression of satisfaction on the part of their illustrious Emperor and Commander will be an incentive to glorious deeds.

A list of casualties is appended to this report, and shows the following total numbers: 294 men and 20 horses killed, 718 men and 10 horses wounded, and 283 missing. An official telegram of the 26th inst., from Pavia, states that 650 wounded private soldiers and 27 officers are in the hospitals there. Twenty-four of the officers and 367 of their men are dangerously wounded.

Garibaldi in Lombardy.

A letter dated Berne, May 29, says:

"The news from all quarters affirms the success of Garibaldi: since he has entered Lombardy each day has been marked by a success. The friends of the Italian cause have been agreeably surprised at beholding a telegraphic message from Como itself announcing the entrance of Garibaldi into that city amid enthusiastic acclamations. Col. Bontemps, who commands the division of the Swiss Federal troops stationed in Italian Switzerland, has advanced the greater portion of his men to the nearest line of frontier to Lombardy, so as to be the better able to protect the integrity of the Swiss territory. According to his instructions, he is to receive with humanity, while disarming them, any detachments of the belligerent armies that may seek refuge in Switzerland, but to oppose by force of arms any who may attempt to force a passage with a view to some strategic diversion. Throughout the whole of the Canton of the Tessin, Garibaldi's success has been hailed with unconcealed enthusiasm, which is easily explained by the analogy of race and language on the one hand, and the resentment nourished against the Austrians for the severities often exercised against refugees who had visited Lombardy on private matters."

The Correspondent of the London Daily News writes from Alessandria, May 29:

"Since I wrote to you Garibaldi has really done wonders. After having twice beaten the Austrian General Urban at Varese, he routed him this morning on the road of St. Fermo, near the Camerlata, a few miles from Como. This town has been already occupied by our Cacciatori delle Alpi, and all the mountain province of the famous lake, together with the Tramezzo and Varesotto districts, have answered to the appeal of Count Viscount Venosta, the Extraordinary Commissioner of Victor Emanuel. The Austrians, completely routed, are in full retreat on Monza, and as the railroad has been broken up by our guides, it would be difficult for Gen. Urban to reassume very soon his offensive movements. Yesterday morning the Austrian steamers which run on the Lago Maggiore, made an attack on Angera, Arona and Canobbio. They were, however, repulsed by the population and national guard of the bordering villages, and the Radetzky steamboat, although armed with guns, was obliged to take shelter in a creek down the western course of the river. Garibaldi's Cacciatori delli Alpe scarcely fired their muskets, being much inferior in their range to those of the Croats. After the first discharge they assaulted the enemy à la bayonette, forcing the positions one after the other.

We have not yet received the details of these brilliant exploits, in which Captain Decristoforis, already well known in England, and two brothers Strambio, have done wonders. Captain Boldrini fell during the glorious attack of San Fermo.

The Messager de Paris publishes the following details of Garibaldi's operations:

"On the 27th of May, after a fierce contest, Garibaldi repulsed the Austrians and entered Como, a town not more than eighteen or twenty miles from Milan."

The intelligence is of the highest importance, and Garibaldi's splendid feat of arms will be the signal for the rising of the Lombard provinces. To comprehend the full value of this news, it is indispensably requisite to make known the position just taken up by the celebrated guerilla chief. After the defeat of the Austrians at Malnate and Garibaldi's entrance into Varese, it is known that they withdrew to Como; to reach this town Garibaldi had to overcome the enemy as well as the natural obstacles on the road. From Biella to Chiasso, Garibaldi was obliged to take a most arduous mountain road; he could neither support himself on the right nor the left; on one side lay the Swiss Territory, whose neutrality he wished to respect; on the other he was hemmed in by the lakes.

In front of Chiasso, there is a funnel-shaped tongue of land, he was obliged to cross; the level ground is so narrow between the mountain-wall and the Lake of Como, that the road becomes a mere path, and at the end of this defile stood the Austrians to bar further progress. Here it was, that they had collected forces to stop Garibaldi on his march; but, as at Malnate, the chasseurs of the Alps beat the enemy and forced a passage; they soon entered Como, and the Austrians fled before them.

At this moment Garibaldi, master of Como, is in a position to scour the whole district of Brianza and march either to the centre of Lombardy or into the Valtelina, and advance on Bergamo and Brescia, both provinces the most decided and the most patriotic.

When General Garibaldi entered Varese, he appointed M. Carcano, the Podesta of the place, to be Provisional Commissioner Extraordinary, acting in the name of the King of Sardinia, as appears from the proclamation of the 24th May. The Piedmontese Gazette has now published the following document, dated May 26, from the Town Hall of Varese, and issued by the new Commissioner:

"Citizens! No sooner had King Victor Emanuel, the first soldier of national independence, announced to Italy that he had once more drawn the sword, than the people of Lombardy, turning their eyes to the Ticino, called for the signal of insurrection. Motives of humanity and prudence, and the general necessities of war, induced us to advise you to delay, which you did, as all is at present disciplined in Italy, quiet, as well as action. But now all further delay is unnecessary, as the brave General Garibaldi has come to announce this to us, and everywhere on his way the people rise, and declare for the national cause and for the government of King Victor Emanuel. As commissioner of his Sardinian Majesty, I come to assume the civil government of this spontaneous movement. Citizens! the Lombard insurrection will be animated by that new and admirable Italian spirit which, with the secret of unanimity, has disclosed to us the secret of success. No disorder will come to disturb the sublime spectacle of liberty; no blind convulsion will disturb the civil organization of the country; no spirit of improvident reaction will presume to consider as the triumph of a party that which is the triumph of a whole nation. Wars of independence require great efforts; you have before you the example of generous Piedmont, which, for the last eleven years, has been been making the most heavy sacrifices for that sublime hope which has now become a reality. Our enterprise is certain; the brave Piedmontese army, led by the King, is marching to our assistance; Italy is organizing for the war of independence; Napoleon III. has thrown the sworn of France, our sister and the natural ally of every generous cause, into the scales of destiny. All Italy asks us for the formation of a powerful State, the bulwark as well as the head of the nation. The wishes of the country nourished for ten years are about to be fulfilled, and you may rise with the certainty of the union you invoke, exclaiming, 'Long live Victor Emanuel, the Constitutional King!'"

The Sardinian Victory at Palestro.

TURIN, Tuesday.

The first details of the fight at Palestro have arrived here. The enemy was intrenched at Palestro, Casalino and Vinzaglio, but after an obstinate defence our troops carried the intrenchment at the point of the bayonet with admirable bravery, took two pieces of cannon, and many small arms and prisoners. The loss of the enemy was very great, but the extent of our loss is as yet unknown.

Vercelli was yesterday evening illuminated. The Emperor traversed the streets on foot, and the town was en fête.

The King passed the night at Torrione amongst the encamped troops.

Movements of the Armies and Generals.

ARRIVAL OF THE EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH AT VERONA.

VIENNA, Tuesday.

The Emperor arrived at Verona yesterday evening at 6 o'clock. His Majesty is received everywhere enthusiastically.

On leaving the hospital the Emperor expressed his thanks to the Sardinian surgeons, to the Sisters o St. Vincent de Paul, and to the ladies of the town, for the care they had bestowed upon the wounded.

"MAY 30—7 30 P. M.

The King has crossed the Sesia with his army. His Majesty captured Palestro after a sharp combat. All the advantage is on the side of the Piedmontese."

The London Daily News correspondent writes, May 29, from Alessandria:

"Whilst I am writing an officer of the staff tells me that a general movement is on the point of being made against the whole of the enemy's lines. The headquarters of King Victor Emanuel have been transferred this morning from Occimiano to Vercelli, and it is likely that a corps of 25,000 men has already crossed the Sesia at Borgo, Vercelli and Ceresana. Since yesterday evening the French pioneers have been busy in erecting a bridge on the Tanaro, near Bassignana, to secure the passage of Canrobert's corps d'armée. It is also supposed that Generals Fanti and Cucchiari's divisions will at the same time force the pass of the Po at Valenza, or somewhere thereabout. We are, therefore, in great expectation; so much so, that since yesterday, the French and Piedmontese commissariat have received orders to furnish the troops with three days' rations. The whole of the medical staff has likewise been ordered to be in readiness for this morning. Were we to succeed in forcing both the passages of the Sesia and the Po, we should be able to assault the Austrians' left wing and a part of their centre. By attacking them at Torrione-Balducco, we threaten both Novara and Vespolato, on their extreme right. Crossing the Sesia at Ceresana, we might march through Colpenchi to Castel d'Agogna and Mortara, whilst forcing the pass of Valenza we can proceed by Mede and Sartirana in the direction of Pavia. Gen. Gyulai may either accept battle on the plain which is circumscribed by the course of the Tessin and the Po, or retiring from Novara, Mortara and Garlasco, make a stand on Pavia. On the first supposition, if beaten, he must at once retire from upper Lombardy, bending his right wing towards the Adda. In the other case he will be obliged to follow the course of the Po as far as Casal Maggiore. In either of these cases Mantua and Piacenza will become his real base of operation.

A second chapter of Austrian inhumanity has been added to the volum'nous chronicle of their dreadful misdeeds. It is the proclamation published on Tuesday last by General Zobel. When I read it in Turin yesterday morning I could scarcely believe that it was genuine. I am now able to affirm it.

You will have already received this atrocious document. Comments are needless, the more so that the threats of the Austrian General have already been acted on. If I am rightly informed, a small hamlet in the vicinity of Aboute, has been fired by order of General Zobel. Here at Alessandria, we do not know how many of our fellow-creatures have been despatched by the hangman of his Austrian Excellency, nor how many have been burnt to death. It is a barbarous war, a war of destruction, that Austria is carrying on; but the day of revenge is near at hand. She must pay once for all the tortures she has so long inflicted on this unhappy land.

I hope you will have received the telegram I sent you yesterday before leaving Turin for this city. Its object was that of answering the following telegraphic message, which appeared under the date of Trieste in the Times of Monday last. I scarcely need add that the impudence shown by Austrian authorities has roused a feeling of general contempt in Turin. The famous telegram runs as follows:

TRIESTE, Monday, May 23.

News from head-quarters contradicts the statement that demands for contributions have been imposed on Vercelli, and alleges that, on the contrary, not the smallest requisition has been made.

The official documents I inspected a few days ago at Vercelli enable me to state that the amount of requisitions made by the Austrian generals and commissariat in that province is not far short of $2,000,000 francs. My letter of Wednesday is, I hope, intelligible enough; and there is no necessity to dwell any more on a truth which is now as clear as day.

Financial Aspects of the War.

THE FRENCH LOAN—REPORT TO THE EMPEROR.

The Moniteur contains the following:

PARIS, Saturday, May 28, 1859.

SIRE: The Administration has just received the last communication touching the loan of five hundred millions. I hasten, as in duty bound, to render an account to your Majesty of the final result of the subscription, and make known to the public the bases upon which the rentes that have to be subscribed in the ledger of the national debt will be distributed amongst the subscribers. On the day after the closing of the operation, when I had the honor of addressing my first report to your Majesty, the returns from the departments had only partially arrived. I could then only indicate, as I took care to announce, temporary estimates, which have been since found to be far below the reality, and are now completely ascertained. As the subscription approached its term, the desire of the public assumed more and more the nature of a patriotic demonstration. The annexed list, which states for each department the exact number of the subscribers and the amount of the capital subscribed, is an eloquent testimony to the sentiments of confidence and devotedness that have impelled the people to enter the subscription offices; I have much happiness in laying it before your Majesty.

According to the list the number of persons who took part in the subscription by paying into the receiving offices of the State the earnest of one-tenth, amounts to nearly seven hundred thousand, (690,190.)

In itself alone this total surpasses by more than a hundred thousand share-takers that of all the subscribers to the three first loans taken togethers.* I need not point out the full importance of this in a political and financial point of view.

It is thus divided:

At Paris	245,025
In the departments	445,165

The sum subscribed is above two milliards five hundred millions (2,509,559,776f.;) it is equal to more than five times the sum demanded.

Paris has supplied	1,547,637,636
The departments	961,922,140
The "coupures" of 10f.	107,043,166
The superior subscriptions at 10f.	2,402,516,509

The deposit of a tenth to be paid in nine days, at Paris and in the departments, is more than two hundred and fifty-one millions (250,955,977fr.)†

I immediately adopted the necessary measures for restoring to circulation as soon as possible that portion of this sum which has to be returned to the public. The reimbursements made at Paris amount already to upwards of seventy-three millions.

The data required to serve as a basis for the liquidation being now possessed by the administration, this intricate labor will be carried on with the greatest activity.

I have the honor of submitting for your Majesty's approbation the principles in accordance with which the distribution will have to be made.

The loan authorized by the law of the 2d of May, inst., comprises a principal sum of 500 millions, and a supplement of 20 millions, intended to facilitate the liquidation and cover the expenses of discount.

On this sum of 520 millions we have first of all to strike off—

1. The amount of the 10-franc subscriptions that are irreducible.

2. The capital of the Rentes due to the subscribers of 20, 30, 40, and 50 francs, who, by means of the minimum of 10 francs of Rents established by the decree of the 3d inst., will receive more than their proportional quota.

The two sums added together amount to 116,561,956f.

The surplus, or 2,393,997,820f., will have to be, as far as it is practicable, distributed at the rate of a franc to the mark amongst all the other subscribers.

The mathematical share accruing to each would be 17f. 04c. per cent. of the sum subscribed.

But the rules that regulate the ledger of the public debt, and the principles laid down by the above-mentioned ministerial decree that determines the condition of the loan, would not permit me to follow out so strict a calculation. As in the previous loans, the liquidation having to be made by multiples of 10 francs for the discountable rentes, and by multiples of 100 francs for the other category, certain subscribers will receive a little more, and others a little less, than the nominal quota.

From all these differences a disposable balance of no great importance will result. From motives of equity I think this remanet ought to be assigned to the small subscribers of 70, 80, 140, 200, 270, 320, and 380 francs, they being least favored by the reduction scale.

Should the Emperor accept these propositions I beg his Majesty that he wil deign to invest with his approbation the present report.

I am, with the most profound respect, sire, your most humble, obedient and faithful subject,

Approved—NAPOLEON. P. MAGNE.

	No. of Subscribers.
*Loan of 250 millions	99,124
Loan of 500 millions	170,820
Loan of 950 millions	316,976

†The sum of 45,302,703fr. 58c. was paid moreover in advance, or in all 296,258,680fr.

The United States Mail steamship Star of the West, A. G. Gray commanding, from Aspinwall June 3 and Key West June 8, with mails, treasure and passengers, arrived at this port early yesterday morning. Her arrival, with a brief summary of her news, was published in a portion of our yesterday morning's edition. GENERAL SUMMARY OF NEWS.

The Prosecution of the "Bulletin"—General Walker's Visit—New Gold Diggings—Overcrowded Steamers—Miscellaneous News.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Friday, May 20, 1859.

The prosecution of the editor and proprietors of the Evening Bulletin, of this city, on a charge of misdemeanor, in publishing Mrs. Sickles' confession, resulted in a judgment of guilty, and a sentence of $100 fine against each of the parties accused. This result, though it has astonished the entire community, does not seem to have taken the defendants by surprise. The Justice fully admits that the defendants proved the absence of all intent on their part to publish the matter complained of—one of them being absent from the city, and the other knowing nothing of the Sickles Confession until after it appeared in the paper. But, nevertheless, taking Webster's definition of "obscene" as the basis of judging the meaning of the Legislature in framing the law, he held that the publication of the confession aforesaid came under the operation of the law, and decided that the question of intent had no bearing upon the case. His logic, briefly, was this: The law forbids obscene publications, and says that whoever publishes any obscene book or paper shall be punished; this publication is obscene; the defendants are the publishers of the paper in which it appeared, and, therefore, they are guilty. The defendants have appealed.

A few days ago, an arrangement was made between Governor Weller and the Administration Federal office holders, that the latter should support his claims to a renomination, and that the Hon. C. L. Scott should be renominated for Congress. This throws General Denver overboard; but whether the arrangement was made in good faith and will be kept there seems to be some doubt. The Federal office-holders are determined to defeat the Hon. Milton S. Latham as a candidate for Gubernatorial honors, and will take either Weller or Denver, just as one or the other of them seems most likely to defeat the common enemy aforesaid. Weller, meantime, has issued a secret circular, which became public, and in which he appeals to the people against the politicians who he says are combining to defeat him.

The Evening Bulletin, announcing the departure of General William Walker, says:

"He has maintained his own counsel so well that no one has been able to obtain any positive indication of his business or purposes. That he came here to promote his long-cherished scheme of conquest in Nicaragua, we have good reason to believe, and the evidence is abundant that his agents are, and have been for some time, engaged in our midst in preparing to aid in another movement looking to that end; but nobody knows how far he has succeeded. We learn that he claims to have accomplished the purpose of his visit here, whatever it was, and that, although he took passage for the East via Panama, he contemplated the possible contingency of receiving news at Acapulco which would induce him to debark at that port."

The ship Wanderer has arrived here at last, 158 days from New-York, bringing, among other freight, two elephants. The huge animals endured the long and boisterous passage remarkably well. During the fine weather they were constantly brought on deck for exercise, and it became necessary on two occasions to enlarge their accommodations, so much did they grow and thrive on the voyage.

The United States sloop-of-war Decatur arrived here in 44 days from Realejo.

John Williams, lately clerk for Messrs. Walling, Martin & Co., quartz miners in Mariposa County, absconded by the last steamer, carrying off $1,500 in money belonging to his employers. Williams enjoyed their unbounded confidence, and was thus enabled to perpetrate his villainy without the slightest suspicion.

George D. Brush, the defaulting Treasurer of Calaveras County, has been held to bail in only $5,000 although his alleged defalcation is for a much larger amount.

A little child, daughter of Mr. Levy, on California-street, died suddenly on Sunday morning.

The prosecution against D. D. Gassner and H. Squire, for selling tickets for lotteries to be drawn in Georgia, were dismissed by the Police Court. The Assistant Prosecuting Attorney stated that he was satisfied the accused could not be held under the law, which only prohibited sales of tickets for lotteries to be drawn in this State, and therefore filed nolle prosequis. The parties are the agents of a certain New-York lottery. Next Winter the Legislature will be apt to amend the law so as to forbid the sale of tickets in foreign lotteries.

The trial of Captain Ephraim Pendleton for cruel and unusual punishment of sailors on board his ship, the Sarah Park, is progressing in the United States Circuit Court. The excitement in r egard to this case seems to have quit e subsided.

We have further accounts of new diggings recently discovered at Brockliss Bridge, twenty miles east of Placerville, which were creating great excitement in Eldorado county. The Mountain Democrat says:

"One company consists of six men. This company had averaged to the hand from $15 to $20 per day for the last seven working days. The other company of three men had taken out $150 in six days they had been at work. They had no other facilities for washing than ground-sluicing—washing up with pans. No fine particle of flour gold has been seen. The gold is of the coarsest description, solid, and of fine quality. Our informant had shown him upwards of $400 worth of dust that had been taken out by these companies, in pieces of scale gold up to lumps worth from $4 to $12."

Great complaints are made in relation to the overcrowding of the Pacific steamers. The Bulletin has the following remarks:

"It is undoubtedly true, too, that after passengers are thrown upon the Isthmus, the least of two wrongs is to bring them up at all hazards. But why throw them there? The passengers' contract, for safe transport, is made in New-York, for the entire trip to San Francisco. It is impossible, therefore, to admit that only one Company is responsible for a policy which huddles men into a pestilential climate, and then makes a merit of violating the law in order to get them away from there. In the case of the Stephens, the agent at Panama appears to have been seriously at fault. He has a spare ship always lying in that port, to take the place of any that may be disabled, so as to insure the passengers against unnecessary detention. It was his duty to have employed this spare ship in bringing up a part of the passengers who came by the Stephens; and we shall look for some mark of disapprobation of his conduct by his principals, if they disapprove it."

The Flag-Ship Roanoke—The Japanese Ambassadors—Probable Movements of the East India Squadron.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The flag-ship Roanoke returned to this port, from Carthagena, on the 29th ult., stopping at Porto Bello to fill up her water. She has, also, filled up her coal. I learn that, since her return, a serious fracture has been discovered by her engineers in the forward crank and pin, of the after engine, which was, doubtless originally caused by an imperfection in the molding of the shaft. The crank is cracked entirely through and the engine with which it connects has, for some time, given the engineers much anxiety as well as trouble. The Chief Engineer is now on shore superintending the manufacture of a large iron strap, so that the crank may be temporarily secured, to enable the ship to reach the United States.

The work is being done at the workshop of the Panama Railroad Company, who have, with their accustomed courtesy, placed materials at the service of the Government. If I mistake not, the after engine of the Colorado also broke down, just as she entered Key West. The heavy work of the engines of both the Roanoke and Colorado were constructed, I believe, at Reading, Pennsylvania, and it is somewhat singular that both engines of both ships should have broken down. It was reported at the time, that the Government paid for the engines of the Roanoke without the usual trial trip. The engines of both ships were [illegible] manufactured at the "Tredegar Iron Works," Richmond, Va. It is rendered very [illegible] that the efficiency of this magnificent ship is now completely destroyed, particularly upon this coast, where navigation is so intricate, in consequence of the strong currents, which often set a ship directly upon the shore, when the wind is but slight and not sufficient to enable a vessel to stem the current, and where the water is so deep that an anchorage cannot be obtained. The Company's bark Magdalena was near being lost a few days since near Porto Bello, from the causes which I have mentioned; as it was, she lost an anchor and chain, and had it not been for a land breeze which fortunately favored her just at the critical moment, and enabled her to gain an offing clear of the breakers, this fine bark would have been swept on shore by the current and lost.

The Roanoke, as your readers are probably aware, has been detailed by the Navy Department to take the Japanese Commissioners to New-York City when they arrive at Panama in the Mississippi. It is now somewhat doubtful whether they will arrive at Panama before the 1st of September, certainly not if the Germantown, dispatched by Flag-officer Tatnall from Hong Kong on the 4th March, for the purpose of rescinding his order, should have communicated with the Mississippi at Simoda. It would take the Germantown at least forty days to beat up to Simoda against the heavy seas and monsoon, and it is hardly probable that Flag-officer Tatnall should not have given the Captain of the Mississippi some discretionary order, such as this: "Should I not arrive at Simoda in the Powhatan by such a time," (as was contemplated when the Mississippi left Hong Kong on the 15th February for Simoda,) "then you will depart for San Francisco and Panama without waiting for me, as you may be sure something important has detained me." The Mississippi was probably two weeks on the passage from Hong Kong to Simoda—which would place her there on the 1st March. It is not likely that she would remain there until the middle of April—the presumed period when the Germantown would have reached Simoda; unless, indeed, the Mississippi should require an additional supply of coal for that expended upon her voyage of two weeks from Hong-Kong to Simoda. It is thought that, having made all the necessary preparations for the reception of the distinguished Japanese Commissioners, the Captain of the Mississippi would hardly wait an indefinite period for the arrival of the Powhatan, and that coal might be obtained at Simoda. Should the Germantown overtake the Mississippi at Japan, and any disappointment take place to the Commissioners, after they had completed their arrangements to come to the United States, it would, indeed, be a most unfortunate occurrence for all the parties concerned, but most particularly so for our countrymen. It would be a most bungling business, and the Japanese Commissioners might well refuse to come at any other appointed time. Consul-General Harris, if in Japan, would, I am sure, interfere and take the responsibility; but, should you not receive any intelligence by the present nor succeeding mail from California of the coming of the Japanese Commissioners, you may rely upon it that there is considerable doubt of their coming at all.

THE ISTHMUS OF PANAMA.

Federalism in New-Granada—The Cass-Herran Treaty—Its Probable Loss—The Revolution in Santander—An American Citizen Assaulted—Politics at Panama—Naval Intelligence—Defective Arrangements of the Vanderbilt Line.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Friday, June 3, 1859.

With the exception of the defeat of the Revolutionists in Chili, and the temporary pacification of that State, I have nothing very important to send you by this mail. Our dates from Bogota are to the 12th May. Congress had adjourned on the 9th, after doing everything it dared to do towards subverting the new federal constitution and centralizing the Government in the hands of the President. In fact the eight "sovereign and independent States" of less than a year's growth, have now not a single attribute of sovereignty left. The people have been virtually disfranchised by the new electoral law, and even their Governors have had everything taken from them except their titles, the new National Intendants, who are the ductile tools of the Executive, supplanting them in all matters of political importance. Congress has voted new and unwarranted interpretations of the Constitution, by which the State Courts become nullities, both in civil and criminal cases; and invested the General Government with a surveillance over the organization and inspection of the public forces of the State.

I see that a Washington letter-writer of the New-York Herald denies my statement that the Cass-Herran Convention was lost by the upsetting of a canoe on the Magdalena River, and asserts that the document lost was "an informal communication from our Government to the New-Granadian Government—but the treaty did not leave till next mail, and consequently did not suffer from the alleged disaster. It has probably been ratified ere this by that Government." This statement of the Herald correspondent may or may not be true—but the evidence is the other way. An official document from the State Department at Washington came out to Aspinwall on the Northern Light, which left New-York on March 11, and this package was said to contain the Convention. It left Aspinwall for Carthagena on the 24th March, and was immediately started up the Magdalena in a canoe. But if the treaty left New-York by the regular mail of March 21, it ought to have been in Bogota about the 12th April. If it was kept in Washington from the time of its ratification by the Senate, (say March 7) till April 5, it should have arrived in Bogota on the 11th of May, which it did not do. But why it should have been kept a month in Washington after its ratification is not easily explained, and probably it was not. One of my Bogota letters, of May 12, thus speaks of the matter:

"About the Cass-Herran Treaty, somehow the official dispatch, containing the news of its ratification, was delayed in Carthagena, and has probably arrived with this mail. The extra sessions of Congress have already terminated, and as the Executive is not authorized to approve of the instrument, it will have to be again discussed by the Congressmen. In other words, the Government is not in a hurry to do anything about the treaty, as there is a debt to be paid in the question, and the opportunity to delay the solution of this affair until next year is too tempting to let slip."

A report is current here that Congress, just before its adjournment, gave President Ospina power to ratify the treaty. But this I know to be an error. A letter I have received from a Member of the Chamber of Representatives says: "Congress took no resolution about the Cass-Herran Treaty. The treaty was not in Bogota when I left."

I am still of opinion that the document lost in the Magdalena was the Cass-Herran Convention—for why it should be left at least a month in Carthagena, while the balance of the mails on two occasions went forward, seems inexplicable, unless from design, as my fair correspondent more than half intimates.

My correspondent adds: "*I hope the United States will send a nice Minister here, or, at least, one that has a nice family, as it will be a pleasant acquaint*ance for us. Patriotic, isn't it?"

Further on: "I don't know where you got your account of the destruction of Quito and the loss of 5,000 lives from. At any rate it is awfully exaggerated. Only about 100 lives were lost, and some buildings destroyed. A certain village near Quito, they say, has become a pond."

I believe our Minister, the Hon. George W. Jones, intends to have his family join him in Bogota in the month of October, and no doubt it is a "nice family."

The revolution in the State of Santander has not yet been entirely quelled, but the State party claim to have beaten its enemies, the Conservadores, in two or three skirmishes. In the last, in Socorro, on the 30th April, the Revolutionists, to the number of 900, attacked the State party of 600, but the former were beaten and mainly dispersed, their leader retreating at the head of only 200 men. In the State of Boyaca, which adjoins Santander, fears are entertained of a

In the State of Cauca, adjoining Panama, of which General Mosquera, late of New-York, has been made Governor, much agitation prevails, the General having declared that his State will not submit to the new electoral law. In fact, the public mind, in all parts of the confederation, is much disquieted, a general apprehension prevailing that the people will not submit to the encroachments of President Ospina and his Congress upon the rights of the people, as guaranteed in the new federal Constitution, which is yet only a year old. Many persons are looking to General Mosquera to head a general revolution, but I apprehend they will be disappointed in this expectation, for the General's tongue is a good deal sharper than his sword.

On the 12th of April, at midnight, the house of Jesus M. Phillips, a very respectable American resident of Santander, was attacked by a band of revolutionists, or robbers, under the lead of a famous character, Juan Franco. While they were attempting to batter down the doors, Mrs. Phillips escaped to the hills. Not succeeding in forcing the doors, Franco undertook to set fire to the house, when Mr. Phillips seized a six-shooter, which had only one charge in it, and shot Franco dead. His servants then captured four of the villains, who were delivered over to the authorities. Franco had been the terror of all peaceable people in the neighborhood for eight or ten years.

In Panama, the new electoral Council has organized, and appointed its subordinates, all of them from the Conservative Party, and generally the most obnoxious of that party. Some anticipate trouble in another month, when the Congressional elections come off.

The British corvette Alert arrived at Panama on the 2d ult., with over two millions of dollars in silver on board, collected from the ports on the west coast of Mexico. The British Government keeps the Alert and the Alarm constantly engaged in this smuggling business on the Mexican coast, the export duties on silver being six and a half per cent. It is not a very dignified business for a great government. I believe some three per cent. of these profits are allowed as admiral's and captain's per centage. The specie went to England across the Isthmus by the Aspinwall steamer.

The Alert fired a national salute of twenty-one guns on the 24th, in honor of the Queen of Great Britain, it being her birthday, and was followed by the United States sloops-of-war Vandalia and St. Marys.

The Merrimac, United States flag-ship of the Pacific squadron, was at Paita on the 14th May, bound to Callao and around the Horn home. A letter from an officer says: "We could only get about four knots an hour out of the ship under steam. There can be no doubt that her engines are a complete failure." At last dates the Cyane was at Realejo.

I hear that the Lancaster, 18 guns, has been ordered to relieve the Vandalia at Panama, and the latter is to take her crew around the Horn home. The Vandalia's two years' cruise will be up in October. If she must wait till the Lancaster gets out, and then makes the voyage around the Cape, her officers and crew will have to serve three years instead of two, contrary to the rule laid down by the present Secretary of the Navy. Why the Vandalia should be recalled and replaced by a ship of the same class, does not appear. The Vandalia was rebuilt at the Kittery or Portsmouth yard only two years ago, at an expense of $100,000. She is in the most complete order—has had new rigging, has two suits of new spare sails, and will not need the stroke of a hammer on her for the next ten years. To relieve her crew across the Isthmus Railroad, sending out the new one in a vessel of the Home Squadron, and taking home the old one in the same vessel, would cost the Department only about $6,000; while the pay alone of both crews around the Horn would cost several times that sum, to say nothing about other expenses. Another evil in sending the Vandalia home will be, that somebody must have a political job on her when she gets into the Brooklyn or Norfolk Yard. A hole will have to be bored into her hull—a plank taken out there—a few sound beams taken out and be replaced by rotten ones—(with a view to another speedy job)—which repairs will foot up in a bill of $50,000 to $70,000, and perhaps turn the scale in some District for a Member of Congress! Thus an injustice is done to the crew and officers, the Government loses a round sum of money, and a good ship is spoiled to make a poor Congressman.

The Roanoke flag-ship is at Aspinwall. The Jamestown goes to San Juan del Norte to-day to relieve the St. Louis, which will come here.

The American ship Vulture, with coals to the steamers of Messrs. Garrison & Co., is still here, and is advertised for charter. Last week she lost twenty to thirty tons of her coals, a barge having sunk alongside from being overloaded.

It is to be hoped the Vanderbilt Steamship Company will make such arrangements as will prevent any detention of their passengers at Aspinwall and Panama in future. The last time the Northern Light came out, her passengers were kept over one night at Aspinwall and a day and night at Panama. More than one half of them had no means to pay hotel expenses, and so they camped down on the uncovered wharf, and slept as best they could in the damp atmosphere, and exposed to the danger of drenching rains. At Panama, the old Church of San Juan de Dios was thrown open to them, and three or four hundred men, women and children slept in it. It was funny to see how suspicious they were of Panama hospitality. It was not until they had sent a Committee to get a pledge that no charge was to be made, that they would enter the Church; and when it was proposed that the doors should be locked to keep out thieves during the night they feared that a dollar apiece would be charged to let them out in the morning—and so compromised by barring the doors inside.

The United States Consular System.

Correspondence of the New-York Times:

Panama, Tuesday, May 2, 1859.

M. McCormick, Esq., Fifth Auditor of the United States Treasury, in a report made to the Treasurer, dated Nov. 18, 1858, uses the following language in regard to the United States Consular system:

"By this statement the Department will perceive that under the present Consular system one hundred and thirty-three principal consular officers are maintained in all parts of the world for the protection of commerce and trade, by the inconsiderable expenditure for salaries of only $146,702 [illegible]."

The whole number of Consuls-General, Consuls, Vice-Consuls and Commercial Agents employed by the United States Government is four hundred and thirty-three. So it appears that three hundred of these public servants cost the United States nothing. And it naturally results that a good portion of them are men who make use of the office only to further their own trade, speculations and rascalities. When their own private interests come in conflict with their duty to their countrymen, it is quite certain that many of these dependent, unsalaried men will prefer the first to the last. Mr. McCormick's boast that we employ a corps of nearly 500 agents abroad, at an expense of only $146,000, will not be duly appreciated by an American in a foreign port, when he is told that the American eagle flaps his wings over a row of whisky and rum bottles in one end of his Consul's office, and that the stars and stripes curtain off a monte bank in the other. [Mr. Pilkington to Mr. Marcy, dated Tehuantepec, June 8, 1854, says: "One of this class (Mr. M—) has been tried and succeeded remarkably well in Acapulco, a few years since. I mean a retail liquor seller, who in one room sells liquor, has another for gambling, and in a third keeps a restaurant, who, in the occasions, displays himself in his uniform, has the arms of the United States before his door, and the flag with the stars and stripes flying as a hotel sign."] And his love of economy will experience a shock when he finds the American shield surmounting the door of a London cockney in Ecuador, and used as a pedler's sign by a British Jew in Cobija.

From this introduction you will naturally suppose I have an illustrative story to tell; and I have.

A couple of months since there came to Panama a man with a big watch-cable dangling about his legs, a diamond pin about the size of a common gridiron in his shirt bosom, "rings on his fingers and bells on his toes;" in short, all the usual trade marks of an Israelitish jewelry dealer. He called himself United States Consul-General at ——. His salary, he said, was only $2,000—it is really only $500—"but the President, knowing he could not live on that, had promised to make it all right in some other way." He said he had served two years in the United States Congress,—which many of his fellow-travelers thought more than doubtful, from the mutton-chop style of his whiskers, the central rotundity of the nose, and the unmistakably English tongue he was so fond of airing. He had come to Panama, he said, to meet his wife who was expected out that trip from England. On his way here he had stopped at Lima, and as he was an American Consul, Mr. Clay, our Minister there, felt bound, of course, to consider him as a gentleman, invited him to his house, treated him in Mr. Clay's usual polite manner, and gave him a letter to the United States Consul here, on his departure. The usual courtesy afforded to United States Consuls of a free ticket across the Isthmus was extended to him by the agent of the Panama Railroad; and when the Southampton steamer reached Aspinwall free tickets to our Consul, his wife and baggage, were furnished to take him back to Panama. The agent was struck a little aback when he found that the "Consul-General's" personal traps occupied one-half of a freight-car—but not conceiving it possible that a United States officer could abuse his generosity by trafficking in it, he was forced to accept his aphorism that "ladies always travel with such a 'cloud of baggage.'"

Well, when the "Consul-General" reached Callao on his way down the coast, he pulled out his official card, and a note of introduction which he had kept from Mr. Clay, to show who he was, and so got his "cloud of baggage" passed at once without examination at the Callao Custom-house. The next day our "Consul-General" sold to a firm in Lima $12,000 worth of jewelry, which he had brought out all the way from England free of freight, and on which he had saved thirty or forty per cent. duties in Peru! The French velvets, the Brussels laces, and the other portions of his wife's baggage, I hear from a passenger lately arrived, he smuggled into the port to which he is accredited; and this will form his pedler's stock until his wife again goes to Europe and returns with another "cloud of baggage."

But this was not the only exploit of our "Consul-General." On his way down he tried the market of Guayaquil with some of his jewelry. At Guayaquil the United States has an acting Consul (Mr. Game, the former Consul, a very gentlemanly man, having resigned) in the person of an Englishman, who is also British Vice-Consul there. This gentleman—Mr. Clark—furthermore, carries on the ice business of the city. When our "Consul-General" "happened along," Mr. Clark had a cargo of ice blockaded in the river by the Peruvian fleet, which fact he communicated to our Israelite. The latter immediately began to boast of his influence in Lima with Mr. Clay, and concluded by offering to get Mr. Clark's ice out of the scrape for the sum of $1,200. Five days afterwards, presenting himself to Mr. Clay, he represented to him that there was an American cargo of ice before Guayaquil, belonging to the U. S. Consul there, and asked as a kindness his interference with the Peruvian Minister of Foreign Relations to get an order for the blockading squadron to let it in. The Peruvian Government does not like to deny Mr. Clay any reasonable favor, and so it consented. The order was sent to Guayaquil, in exchange for which a draft for $1,200 was forwarded to our Hebrew friend. Mr. Clay was, of course, very indignant when he found he had been led to make false representations to the Peruvian Minister; and, possibly, American Consuls may experience the consequences of his chagrin somewhat in future, when they have nothing but their title and their own word as evidences of their respectability.

The honorable Secretary of State of the United States must not cry "Pooh-pooh!" when he reads this, and add, "that is only one case out of 433"—resulting from the appointment of foreigners to United States Consulates, because the Government cannot afford to pay decent Americans for doing the duty. But let him frame a bill, to be presented to the next Congress, abolishing such Consulates as are not needed, and establishing such salaries for others as will enable respectable Americans to accept all the positions. Then, if the Government will decline to nominate any man for these posts whose only recommendation is that he helped the member from his district into Congress, or followed up the army in Mexico with a deck of monte-cards, our representation abroad may be measurably improved.

A Pretty Quarrel at San Juan del Norte—Enlargement of the Greytown Harbor—The Belly Party—Probable War between Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Aspinwall, Friday, June 3, 1859.

At San Juan del Norte the United States Commercial Agent is having a pleasant time with the Common Council. This body, assisted by the English Consul, are endeavoring to dispossess the late Benjamin Mooney of his property, representing it as a part of the estate of Her Britannic Majesty. Of course, Young America puts his veto upon this appropriation, Mooney having been an American; and the property, rightfully his own when living, is now, he being dead, the property of his heirs.

The harbor of San Juan del Norte has much increased, and will once more admit steamers as usual. The route via Nicaragua can, therefore, be reopened at once, if necessary.

The Belly corps is much changed of late. The rainy season having set in, the horrors of the climate have induced them suddenly to sigh for the land they left behind, "La belle France." Since the death of Mr. Milot, the Chief Engineer, the whole party appears staggered, and it would not be surprising if, in a month or two, they all ran away.

There seems to be an increasing desire on the part of the Republic of Costa Rica to commence a war with Nicaragua, for what cause it is impossible as yet to gather. It is connected in some way, I presume, with the transit.

The St. Louis is at Greytown.

The passengers by the Star of the West arrived on the 31st ult. By a telegram we learn the steamer from California has arrived at Panama, and will be over the road, and leave this afternoon by the Star of the West, for New-Orleans and New-York; 470 passengers.

The Greytown news I receive from the English steamer just arrived.

The Nicaragua Canal.

From the Panama Star.

The reports recently received respecting the progress of the Nicaragua Canal are not of a promising character. The form of laying the foundation stone had been gone through, but, notwithstanding the preparations which were previously made for celebrating the occasion in a magnificent style, it turned out to be a most insignificant affair. Neither the President of Costa Rica nor Nicaragua were present, although Commissioners were sent expressly from England to invite them; indeed, no one was there except a few employes of M. Belly, so far as we can ascertain; certainly no one of any distinction.

Considerable sickness has broken out among the engineer corps, and one of the party had died of yellow fever.

The survey of the river and lake was being proceeded with, but in a very superficial and hasty manner, with the object, probably, of getting a report into the market as soon as possible. The general opinion appears to be, even of the most sanguine believers in the Canal, that the scheme is very likely to meet with a premature death; and, although we never had the slightest faith in the undertaking, our opinion of its being a humbug is daily strengthened by the reports which reach us.

NEW-GRANADA.

Arrival of Mr. Jones, the New American Minister—His Visit at Cartagena—Leaves for the Capital—The Frigate Roanoke.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Cartagena, Tuesday, May 24, 1859.

The usual quiet of this dull and stupid city was greatly disturbed on last Sabbath forenoon by the appearance off this port of a very large American steam-frigate. She anchored in the outer roadstead, about one mile and a half from the city, and shortly thereafter a boat left the ship and was pulled for the beach outside the castle walls. Upon landing, I learned that the boat contained a Lieutenant and Mr. Jones, the son of Ex-Senator Jones, our newly-appointed Minister to New-Granada, and who had been dispatched by his Government thus far on his way to Bogota in the United States steam-frigate Roanoke, Captain Gardner, the flag-ship of the Home Squadron, and bearing the flag of Admiral McCluney. The Lieutenant and young Mr. Jones proceeded to the United States Consulate, where they were warmly greeted by our recently appointed and gentlemanly Consul, Mr. Mathieu. Accompanied by the Consul, the party then went to visit the Governor; and upon being introduced by the Consul, the Lieutenant (Mr. Kennon, a son, I believe, of the late Commodore Kennon) stated to the Governor that he had been directed to call and present the compliments of Admiral McCluney, and to inform the Governor that the flag of New-Granada would be saluted by the Admiral with twenty-one guns, upon being assured by the Governor that it should be returned, gun for gun. The Governor, who is an exceedingly affable and polished gentleman, and highly esteemed by both natives and foreigners, replied that while he fully appreciated the kindness which prompted the offer of the Admiral to salute the flag of New-Granada, and the visit of the Lieutenant and young Mr. Jones to him, he very much regretted that, at the present time, there was no garrison stationed at Cartagena, and, consequently, it would be impossible to accede to the demands of the Admiral of the United States. I understand that the Governor was very profuse in his offers of services to Mr. Jones, and said he would give the necessary orders to extend to the Minister of the United States every facility on his journey to Bogota. After taking leave of the Governor, the Consul and young Mr. Sanchez (son of our previous Consul) then accompanied the Lieutenant and Mr. Jones (who, I hear, is the Secretary of Legation) on board the Roanoke, where they were handsomely received and hospitably entertained by the Admiral and Captain. Upon leaving the ship the Consul was saluted with seven guns. The Consul and Mr. Sanchez speak in the highest terms of the appearance and effectiveness of this splendid ship, and the politeness and attention of her officers. In the afternoon of the same day, and that subsequent, quite a large number of the officers of the Roanoke visited the city. They attracted much attention, and appeared to be pleased with what they saw. Their stay was too brief for our citizens to have extended to them their hospitalities, which, I happen to know, was in contemplation.

On the morning of the 23d inst., General Jones, the Minister, Mr. Jones, Secretary of Legation, accompanied by Lieut. Kennon, and Mr. [illegible], Secretary of the Admiral, disembarked from the Roanoke in the Admiral's barge; and upon leaving the ship, the Minister was saluted by the Admiral with seventeen guns. Landing upon the beach, the Minister was received by the Consul of the United States, and the aid-de-camp of the Governor; and a carriage was in waiting, politely sent down by the Governor, for the Minister and his suite. The party proceeded to the Governor's mansion to pay their respects to the Governor; and were severally introduced to him by the Consul; the Governor received them in his usual courteous manner. The interview lasted about half an hour, and the Governor assured the Minister that orders had already been sent forward by him, so that every facility should be afforded to the Minister on his route to Bogota. The Minister and suite then took leave of the Governor, visited the Cathedral and adjourned to the hospitable mansion of the American Consul, where they were handsomely received by his lady.

Gen. Jones and his son left at an early hour this morning, on horseback, under the escort of the Consul, as far as Calamar—90 miles—where they take the steamer upon the Magdalena River, which will convey them well onward to Bogota.

The Minister and his son speak in the highest terms of all the officers of the Roanoke, and express themselves under many obligations for the politeness, attentions and many kindnesses which they received at their hands during their sojourn of four days on board.

The Roanoke leaves here for Aspinwall at 4 o'clock this afternoon. It is very much regretted by the Governor, and the ladies and gentlemen of Cartagena, that her brief stay in our waters did not allow of her coming into the harbor, so that all could have availed themselves of the opportunity, so seldom presented, of examining—as I hear the Roanoke is—perhaps, the most magnificent and efficient war-vessel afloat in the world. The regret is universal.

I must now close, as the hour has arrived for the departure of the mail by the Roanoke.

Sincerely, your friend, COSMOPOLITE.

Rumors of Revolution in Ecuador—The Blockade—Peru—Congress succumbs to the President—Bolivia Quiet—Chile—Great Battle at Coquimbo—2,000 Men Killed—The Government Victorious—The Revolution Ended—Seizure of an American Ship.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Panama, Thursday, June 2, 1859.

The British mail steamship Bolivia, Capt. Strachan, arrived at Panama on the 21st. She brought $265,200 in silver for England. The dates from Valparaiso are to the 1st May, and from Callao and Lima to the 13th.

ECUADOR.

The Bolivia did not touch at Guayaquil, but brings some rumors from Ecuador which had reached Paita. One is, that a second and successful attempt had been made at Guayaquil to overturn the Government of President Robles. Another is, that the interior towns had pronounced against Robles, and had proclaimed Señores Gabriel Garcia Moreno and Pacifico Chiriboga as the two candidates for President, and Jeronimo Carrion for Vice-President.

The blockade of Guayaquil is still continued by the Peruvian steamships Amazonas and two smaller steamers—but it is thought matters will soon be settled; in anticipation of which, large stocks of flour and other articles are waiting in the neighboring ports of Paita and at the mouth of the river, for the Guayaquil market.

PERU.

It appears that the Congress at Lima did not insist further on the destitution of President Castilla and his Ministers, for their refusal to execute the laws of that body, in view of the bayonets the President flashed in their faces. But, in deference to public opinion, Castilla ordered a Council of War, which condemned Lieut. Col. Arguedas, from whom Congress had taken the rights of citizenship and exiled for an indefinite period, for forcibly breaking up the Constituent Assembly in November last, to be deprived of his military command and to be exiled for one year.

Another attempt at revolution had been made at Arequipa, but the leaders were arrested or fled.

It is reported that Ex-President Echenique has invaded the Peruvian Territory with a Bolivian force; and it is charged that Castilla furthers these puerile movements for the purpose of wringing from Congress its consent to a loan of five millions of dollars which he has asked, and the increase of the army to 20,000 men. It is now 15,000 strong. Congress, so far, refuses to comply.

BOLIVIA.

Colonel Agreda, who attempted the revolution at La Paz, and Ex-President Cordova, as I wrote you in my last, having taken refuge in Peru, the country is quiet. President Linares continues to propose and further progressive laws and measures. He has sent an agent to the United States or to Europe, to endeavor to make a loan, offering the customs of the port of Cobija as security for its payment.

CHILI.

On the 29th April, a sanguinary battle was fought at or near Coquimbo, between the revolutionary forces numbering 3,000, under Gallo, and a Government force of 4,000, under General Vidaurre. The former were completely defeated and scattered, Gallo himself escaping at the head of only 100 horsemen. The details of the battle have not yet reached us, but it is said the loss on both sides amounted to 2,000 men. General Vidaurre claims to have taken 600 prisoners. The fighting commenced at 7 o'clock in the morning and lasted till 12 at noon. This, it is considered, ends the revolution. General Vidaurre immediately dispatched 600 men to take the port of Caldera.

In the South, the revolutionary army, numbering 2,000, under Jerapequi, has been defeated by Colonel Pinto, near Los Angeles, with many killed on both sides, and 300 taken prisoners of the revolutionists. Guerilla bands still hang around Talca, but, for the present, the disaffected are everywhere defeated. But, with the great opposition that exists all over the country to the Administration of President Montt, a peace of long duration cannot be calculated. So long as he remains in power, the country will continue in a disturbed state.

Another difficulty has taken place between the master of an American vessel and the Government. The brig Townsend Jones arrived at Valparaiso eight or ten months since with a cargo of muskets, sabres and other war materiel. The master being unable to dispose of his cargo, under instructions from his owners prepared to sail for California, but the authorities refused to grant him a clearance—(perhaps expecting, and it may be rightly, that he intended to dispose of his cargo to the revolutionists at Caldera or Coquimbo.) They brought the brig close into the Mole, opened the hatches, took out the powder and sent it to the public magazine, and then took out all the balance of the cargo. The master entered protests before the United States Consul against these illegal acts, but the authorities took no notice of his complaints. Finding that the cargo agreed in every particular with the manifest, the Government offered to return it to the Captain, but, by the advice of Consul Ryckmann, he refused to receive it, and upon force being used against him, he hauled down his flag and abandoned the vessel to the authorities.

The Austrian frigate Novara, on a scientific expedition, with about twenty savans on board, is still at Valparaiso. It is probable, on account of her peaceful mission, she will be excepted by France from the rules of war.

Business remains inactive in Chile. Flour is held at from $4 to $4 50 per quintal, 6 mos. Carolina Rice, $6, in bond. Barley is held at $2 68@$2 75. Nitrate of Soda, $2 25. Copper, $20 cash. Copper Regulus, $8 50 cash. Freights to England, £2. American bark Lexington, ores, to Baltimore from Cobre, (Chile,) $10; American bark Scotland, ores, from Paposo to Baltimore, $10.

ARGENTINE PROVINCES.

Everything is quiet in these Provinces. No immediate probability of war with Buenos Ayres.

BOLIVIA.

Historical Retrospect of the Republic—Its Elements of Wealth—Present Condition of its Industry and Resources—The Government of Dr. Linares—Commercial, Financial and Political Prospects.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

La Paz, Sunday, May 1, 1859.

Of all the South American Republics, the one least known abroad is Bolivia. This is to be accounted for by the geographical position of the country, which completely isolates it from the rest of the world, and prevents those collisions, friendly or unfriendly, by which States become mutually acquainted with each others' relative strength and tendencies. The only neighbor of Bolivia with whom such collisions are possible is Peru. Chili is separated from it by impassable deserts, and Brazil by an immense territory only nominally attached to its sway, and peopled by aboriginal tribes, occupying large tracts of the finest lands in the world—the limits of whose possession are so vaguely laid down, that neither State can tell within a few hundred miles, what or how much belongs to either. With Peru, however, and with the Argentine Republic, Bolivia has had to contend for its existence. Originally, during the time when Spain ruled over South America, it formed part of the Viceroyalty of Peru, under the name of High, or Upper Peru, a name which was appropriate enough, as it forms one of the highest table lands of the globe. That Viceroyalty being too extended, and its population too heterogeneous to form one political body, Bolivar, after the battle of [illegible], founded a new Republic, to which he gave his name.

Although descended from the Spaniards as well as the Peruvians, the inhabitants of this region have preserved some peculiarities which distinguish them from their neighbors. As everywhere, climate and geographical position assert their rights, and the race which has resulted from the crossing between the Spaniards and the aboriginal Indian mountaineer, is much hardier, and manlier than the Creole of the coast regions, where, furthermore, there exists a considerable mixture of African blood, which certainly, in this case, has not contributed to improve the race. As the mines of Potosi, in former years the richest of the known world, were situated in this country, the Spanish aristocracy were anxious to secure Government appointments in connection with them; hence a comparatively larger number of the best families established themselves there, and as a natural consequence of this, education and refinement of manners were carried to greater perfection in this than in any other part of Spanish America, with the exception only of Lima itself. On this ground was decided the overthrow of the Spanish power, and after the battle of Ayacucho in 1824, Bolivia, under her new name, commenced her existence as an independent State. Although, however, the last to get rid of her masters, from their unwillingness to part with their richest prize, she had been the first to proclaim the principle of independent self-government, which the inhabitants of Chuquisaca did in 1809, even previous to the movement having taken place in Buenos Ayres. Hence Bolivar gave that city the name of the General who had gained the decisive victory over the Spaniards—Sucre—and added the title of "Illustrious and Heroical" to the new declared capital of the infant State. That many struggles between the citizens of such a new country must have taken place for a number of years, is to be supposed the more readily, when we remember that the inhabitants had been born and bred under the iron rule of one of the most absolute and intolerant Governments that ever existed, and that no foreigner of any other nation had been allowed to settle in the country, for fear of instilling ideas into their minds which might lead to the development of native enterprise, or industry, or might induce them to think of the possibility of existing, separated from their loving mother country. It is rather to be wondered at, that under such disadvantages, so many men could be found capable of comprehending the circumstances of their position, and willing to risk their fortunes and their lives for the acquirement of a good, which, at that time, must have appeared problematical, and which even after so many years of struggle, intestine strife and opposition is not grasped by the mass of the population, as liberty and independence are prized in more advanced countries.

The first years of existence of the young Republic were marked, as might have been expected, by a succession of changes, the public mind not being clearly defined with regard to the form of the Constitution—the privileged class being still imbued with the old leaven of Spanish prerogative, and ecclesiastical superiority. But the great curse of Bolivia was the standing army. As here the Spaniards had made the most determined stand, the largest and most formidable of the patriot armies had been formed on the same ground, and after the battle of Ayacucho the liberator found himself embarrassed with an army of something above 20,000 men, whose occupation was gone, and who never having acquired the habits of business or industry, could not make up their minds to turn the sword into the plowshare, particularly as having then no enemy to contend with, ruling over their fellow-citizens appeared a much more agreeable task. Various proposals to get rid of them by making war on the surrounding Indian tribes, and even on Brazil were suggested, but all miscarried, as the parties concerned were too well informed, and too watchful to allow themselves to be thus surprised. The different leaders at different times aspired to the Presidency, and led to innumerable conflicts. At last, however, Gen. Santa Cruz, a man of superior mind, seized the reins of Government. Gen. Santa Cruz maintained his position for two electoral periods, that is to say for ten years. During this time the progress of the country was marked, and it seemed as if Bolivia was going to take the lead in South American politics.

Santa Cruz felt, with every other enlightened Bolivian, that the country labored under an immense disadvantage on the Pacific coast—its communication with the world being reduced to the single port of Cobija, which is separated from the inhabited part of the country by a desert of about 200 leagues, equal to 600 miles in extent—whereas by a more equal division of territory, Iquique, and above all Arica with Tacna, ought to have been added politically, as they belong commercially to Bolivia. Here, therefore, was one source of quarrel with Peru. Another, and a more serious one still, was the claim advanced by the latter on Bolivia for public debt, contracted during their war with Spain. Bolivia protested against, or repudiated the claim, alleging that they had incurred no debt, that they had fought their own battles, had aided and assisted Peru, for which they claimed no remuneration, and that they would not and could not in justice acknowledge a debt which had been incurred by others, without their consent, and which had been employed in the service of others. The consequence of this feeling was a repetition of aggressions on the part of Peru, which, trusting to its greater external resources, thought it could compel its refractory neighbor to come to terms. After several failures, a coalition was at last formed between Peru and the Argentine Republic, or rather its dictator, Rosas, and the armies of both States invaded Bolivia, apparently in overwhelming numbers, at the same time in the north and the south. The Bolivians, however, nothing dismayed, proved their superiority once more by most signally defeating both their antagonists—indeed by annihilating the Peruvian army, although three times more numerous than their own.

Since that time (1838) no one has troubled the country from without, but the troubles from within continued, with less violence it is true, but still they continued, as the old military element still remained, and had appreciated its services to the country in the recent wars.

The last military revolution took place in 1848, encouraged and promoted by Peru, from motives of personal revenge, the President at the time being General Ballivian, the man who had so signally defeated them ten years before. An obscure officer, of unscrupulous tendencies, was the instrument selected, and after about two years of trouble, General Belzu managed to make himself master of the situation. He was, of course, nominally elected, and finished his period, at the expiration of which he had the good sense to retire from public life, and to remove to Europe, where he still remains.

During his government, the men of liberal ideas and pacific, industrious tendencies, made several attempts to redeem their country out of the military bondage in which it was kept by Belzu, but without success. On his retiring, one of his creatures, General Cordova, being nominated successor, the face of affairs suddenly changed, the latter being an imbecile, devoid alike of talent, as of energy, and every other quality necessary to a ruler, and above all to a military despot. In September, 1857, a general rising throughout the country proclaimed a new order of things, or more properly speaking, returned to the old order, which had been overthrown by the bayonets in 1848, the Congress of that year having been literally expelled from their chambers by the soldiery, just as the English Parliament had been by Cromwell.

The then Speaker of the Congress, Jose Linares, was in 1757 proclaimed President, ad interim, by universal acclamation, and is the first civilian who has occupied the Presidential chair, and who has shown himself worthy of the confidence of the nation. During the Administration of Santa Cruz and following Presidents, he had been employed as the diplomatic agent of Bolivia at different courts of Europe, for the purpose of arranging commercial treaties with them, which mission he discharged to general satisfaction. He imbibed, however, at the same time, principles much in advance of his countrymen, and ceased to take an active part in politics until having been elected as member of Congress for the capital, Chuquisaca, in 1847, he thought the time had arrived when some progressive movements might be attempted. In Congress, as leader of the debates, he distinguished himself by the clearness of his views, and the energy he displayed when the Military Party attempted to upset the Constitution. Owing to the weakness of President Velasco, they succeeded in their attempt, but Linares, although persecuted and obliged to leave the country, solemnly vowed either to deliver Bolivia from the clutches of her aggressors or to perish in the attempt. For nine years he persevered, hovering around the frontiers and keeping up a constant correspondence with the better-thinking part of the population, sacrificing his private property in the service of the public, and dedicating his whole existence to this one end. At last his endeavors were crowned with success, and in September, 1857, he assumed the government of the country.

He immediately formed a Ministry, consisting of the ablest men, without regard to party, and commenced energetically a complete system of reforms in every department. The first, as the most vitiated and the most dangerous, was the Army. All the old officers and generals, whose unsatisfied claims gave them frequently pretexts for joining in revolution, were ordered to prove their services before a Commission, and according to the sentence of the Commission, were placed on allowance, which was officially recognized by the State, and reduced to 75, 50 or 30 per cent. of their full pay, according to their length of service. All junior officers, who had not reached a certain service, were discharged, and several Generals superseded. In order to meet the expenses without drawing upon the normal resources of the State, he introduced a system of retrenchment, which affected alike all the higher offices, commencing with the President's. The allowance of that officer (which formerly had been $36,000 a year) was reduced to $18,000—and so in proportion the Ministers and heads of Departments down to the subalterns, who have been left in their original position. A decree was passed at the same time, by which every public officer proved guilty of dereliction of duty, (applied particularly to the Custom-house officers,) and every military man guilty of ungentlemanly conduct and drunkenness, were to be instantly cashiered. By vigorously enforcing this law, and by carefully selecting the candidates, he has succeeded in this short time in completely changing the face of affairs. The army has been reduced to a very small but efficient number of men. The infantry armed with Minié rifles, the cavalry with Sharpe's rifles, the officers all selected from the best families of the country and subjected to rigorous moral discipline.

The further development of the resources of the country, so as to open it to foreign enterprise and bring it into contact with the world outside, is the object of the present Administration. Hitherto the exportation consisted principally of Peruvian bark, copper ores and bar silver, but the rivers to the southward, connecting with the Plata and the Parana, having recently been explored and found available for commerce, Bolivia is anxious to avail itself of that circumstance and to open new channels of exportation for its abundant natural productions, sugar, tobacco, mahogany, rosewood and wools, (principally alpaca,) hides, and medicinal plants. The climate, soil and productions of the territory on the borders of the great river basin is not surpassed for fertility and salubrity by any part of the globe; the aborigines are a harmless, plodding, exceedingly manageable set of beings, and not overnumerous; so that a splendid field for commercial and industrial enterprise will be opened to the world as soon as the Bolivian Government can carry out its enlightened views. The population of the Republic amounts to two and a half millions. One third of these are lineal descendants of the old Spaniards, of the higher classes in a great measure, the second third are the working classes, tradesmen, &c., descendants of the Spaniards and aboriginal Indians, with a predominance, however, of the white race; the remainder are Indians. The natives are exceedingly industrious, good miners, and handy at the common occupations of life, and, above all, steady and humble in their habits. The total revenue of the State, derived from direct property taxes, custom-house and other dues, amount to close upon three millions of dollars per annum. There exists no national debt, a circumstance peculiarly favorable to the future development of the resources of the country under a progressive administration.

Progress of the Insurrection—Success of the Government—Life at Valparaiso—Maritime Intelligence—Defeat of the Patriots in the North.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Valparaiso, Friday, April 29, 1859.

Our civil war is still on foot. All await the result of the battle to come off at or near Coquimbo. The insurgents have waited in that same position, and the Government forces have advanced to meet them. On the 24th inst., four days ago, Gallo, their energetic leader, marched out from Serena, a couple of leagues, and the Government troops began to move from Songoy to the encounter. The Government army is upwards of 3,000 strong,—some accounts say 4,000. The insurgents' number is variously stated—ranging from 1,500 to 4,000; probably there are about 2,500 under arms.

The Mercurio, being allowed to appear again, is pleading for conciliatory measures; but the impression on many is that this is only a masked opposition. It is questionable if bloodshed can now in any way be averted. However, even on that subject, prediction is quite unsafe, since money may be applied on one side as well as another.

At the South, the Government has been successful. A body of men gathered on the Indian frontier, variously reckoned between one and two thousand, under lead of a shopkeeper, Tirapegui. They threatened Concepcion, but finding it garrisoned and entrenched, moved north on Chillian. There they were beaten to pieces; lost nine pieces of artillery, sixty men killed, and three hundred prisoners. Since that affair, troops have come north, by sea, to join the army at Coquimbo.

Lent has just passed. There was no event connected with it deserving of special notice; the usual amount of abstinence in Holy Week, and the amusements of its welcome termination. Among these last may be mentioned an exhibition of bears, made by some backwoods chap from California. He has brought seven specimens. He treats them with all imaginable familiarity to show their tameness. On Sunday next he is to give a "spectacle" of a fight between a bear and a bull. The papers do not look on this battle with any special favor. In all probability the showman will not find the speculation lucrative.

The Captain of the lost steamer Prince of Wales Johnson, is here. After careful examination, no trace of wreck or rock could be found; but evidence is strong to show that there is a rock, not laid down in the charts, known of in the locality. That the boat did not strike on the Peguerian rocks is proved by the shore people, who saw her go down two or three miles to the eastward. The Captain goes forward by this mail to Callao, to confer with the manager. He is generally esteemed on the coast.

We have, for the first time, an Austrian man-of-war in the bay—the frigate Novara. All the Germans have been in ecstacies. Her purpose, at present, is scientific.

The Ganges, British, is here, flag-ship of Admiral Baynes, ere long to sail for Vancouver's. The Alarm will probably leave the coast shortly for England.

The Gas Company of this city is engaged in a lawsuit with their former engineer, Wallace, on a question of failure to fulfill contract. The prospect of the suit is adverse to the Company.

A question has arisen with an American brigantine laden with munitions of war. She has been here a year. Being an object of suspicion, the Government has kept her under surveillance during this war; a steamer was anchored near her for observation; then she was anchored close in shore; and finally the Government has ordered her cargo discharged for safe-keeping. At the same time the Captain presents letters from her owners, ordering him to go to Mexico, which some pronounce a ruse to get off and land his arms at the northern ports. It will not be without its intricacy.

Lord Cochrane's strictures on Chili have been published here: i. e., extracts. Not very gratifying, we judge.

Sunday, May 1, 1859.

News is just received that the insurgents at the North have been defeated—losing 500 prisoners and all their field pieces.

They fell back on Serena, and were treating for terms.

This is the report. Though no dispatch has appeared, we believe it to be true.

IMPORTANT FROM ARIZONA.

Call for a Territorial Convention—Mass Meeting at Arizona City—Important Movements.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Tubac, Arizona, Wednesday, May 9, 1859.

An important movement, preparatory to the calling of a Territorial Convention, took place at Arizona City on the 7th inst. The total absence of regulated authority in this Territory has thrown upon the citizens the responsibility of inaugurating measures for self protection. The accumulated outrages committed upon defenceless persons, and the difficulty of bringing offenders to justice, have produced the natural effect of arousing public sentiment to the necessity of active measures. In pursuance of a notice publicly given, a mass meeting was held at Arizona City, May 7, at which Mr. C. W. Pease presided, for the purpose of giving expression to the views of the community.

On motion of S. W. Hastings, a committee of three was appointed to draft a preamble and resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting, whereupon Messrs. Hastings, Irving and Sternthall were appointed as said committee, and reported the following:

Whereas, For a series of years, have we, in vain, humbly knocked at the portals of our National Government; in vain, have we, annually, sent our duly constituted delegate to Washington; in vain have we petitioned, supplicated and implored Congress for relief; and in vain have we invoked protection of person, property and life, a guarantee of the ordinary rights and privileges of American citizens.

Facts have been heaped upon facts, instances have been added to instances, showing conclusively our utter destitution, and absolute incapacity to protect ourselves without the protective influence of Government. We have shown that we are wholly without Government; that in the entire country, from the Rio Grande to the Colorado, a distance of six hundred miles east and west, and a like distance, north and south, there are no courts, no civil officers, no laws, and that crime stalks abroad in our midst in open day.

We have shown that immigrant trains have been attacked by ruthless savages, and driven back, with great loss of life and property, leaving destitute women and children to wend their way back, in doubt and dread, through an almost trackless waste; and that others, less fortunate, have all been slain, women and children brutally murdered when struggling in defence of wives and mother, while the wives and mothers were persecuted to death!

We have shown that armed Mexicans have invaded our Territory, and stained our soil with American blood; that Mexican cut-throats and outlaws, under cover of night, have barbarously murdered and mangled the bodies of our citizens in charge of our mail stations; and that marauding parties of ruthless savages and barbarous Mexicans infest our entire Territory, deluging the country in blood, driving off our herds, producing [illegible] dread and alarm in our midst, preventing immigration, impoverishing our people, and depopulating our country.

Notwithstanding all this, the doors of Congress [illegible] have been closed; the ears of those high in power have been deaf to our cries for relief; and to the scenes of blood and carnage here presented have they shut their eyes with seeming indifference and evident contempt; therefore,

Resolved, That we, the citizens of Arizona City and vicinity, invoking the guidance and protection of Divine Providence, do hereby solemnly determine, with the consent and cooperation of our fellow-citizens throughout the Territory, to establish and maintain a Government for ourselves.

2. That we earnestly request our fellow-citizens in all parts of the Territory to unite with us in this effort to rescue our adopted country from the [illegible] supine negligence.

3. That we hereby recommend to our fellow citizens that an election be held at suitable places throughout the Territory on Monday, the 20th inst., for the election of delegates to a Territorial Convention, to be held at Tucson, on Monday, the 20th of June proximo; and that Arizona City elect six, and Gila City four delegates to said Convention.

4. That we also recommend that said Territorial Convention, when convened and organized, shall have full power to adopt an organic law for the Provisional Government of the Territory, to apportion the representation, and, if deemed necessary, to elect, temporarily, the various officers of the Territory, and to do such other acts and things as said Convention shall deem meet and proper.

5. That this Territory now contains a larger population than did either Kansas, Nebraska or Washington at the time of their organization; that the opposition to our Territorial organization, on the ground of deficiency of population, must be regarded as the result of either ignorance or [illegible].

6. That if our population is less than represented, we are the more entitled to Governmental protection, for the many can protect themselves—the few cannot.

7. That United States tax collectors are located [illegible] everywhere in our midst, and that thus is the Government reasserting the odious repudiated English doctrine of "taxation without representation."

8. That our sincere thanks be hereby tendered to the Hon. [illegible], our delegate to Congress, as a token of gratitude for his unremitting perseverance in our behalf.

On motion, the preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted. Messrs. Hastings and [illegible], being called upon, each addressed the meeting at some length, and with great effect, showing the absolute necessity and entire propriety of the proposed Territorial organization.

Mr. W. H. Jarvis, in company with several Americans, residents of Arizona Territory, arrived in Tubac from Sonora on the evening of the 28th of April. Their departure from Hermosillo was somewhat accelerated from the fact that a singular excitement existed in the city, and every American was notified to leave at once, under penalty of death for remaining. The population was greatly excited, thronging the streets, insulting and threatening Americans, evidently with full consent from the authorities, who seemed to share the prevailing sentiment. In one or two instances houses, belonging to Americans, were forcibly entered by the mob, who threatened a general massacre of every American in the city; and, as the fifteen or twenty there were scattered about in various places, the opportunity for such a characteristic Mexican performance was excellent.

There was no particular reason assigned for this sudden and remarkable ebullition of hostility towards the Americans. No cause has been given, that any American was aware of. The few Americans in Hermosillo were quietly attending to their own affairs, when they were beset, insulted, threatened and abused in an outrageous style, and, under the circumstances, resistance was useless.

PLANS AND PURPOSES OF THE GERMAN LIBERALS.

The Universal Popularity of the War-Policy of the German States—The Various Interests Involved—Views of the Liberal Party—Democracy gradually giving way to Constitutional Monarchy—A new Prussian Deutsch Bund proposed, not of the Princes, but of the Peoples of Central Europe—A Constitution like the American, Free [illegible], Free Schools, &c.—These Plans in the light of the Present War.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

[illegible], Saturday, May 21, 1859.

The present position of the German States, with relation to the War, has been adopted, it is true, by the Princes and their Councils; but it meets with a remarkably unanimous approbation at the hands of the people. I may say, there are three great interests which seem equally to be served and satisfied by the political stand taken, within the last month, by the Bund. First, the selfish interest of the German Governments; second, the general interest of the people, as against a common foe; and third, the patriotic plans of liberal statesmen. And thus it is that, appealing to all classes alike, the military measures of Deutschland have met with most enthusiastic assent from all. In a former letter I showed on what ground the German Liberals withhold their aid from Italy. The mass of the people, it is true, do not reason upon the subject so far. It is enough for them that they hate the Emperor of the French; and the old spirit is again awakened, which years of suffering at the hands of Frenchmen planted in the heart of Baden and the Rhein Thal, and which years of peaceful trade could not totally extinguish. But many look farther, and are brought, by calm reason, to the same position to which the people leap through passion. A general idea of the plans which are entertained by such, as members of the Liberal Party, and the road which that party would probably take, had it the opportunity, towards their grand end, may be useful to those who would better understand the springs of opinion here.

In the first place, the Democratic Party has no existence in Germany. Those who advocate a democracy as the best form of government for this country, now, or even fifty or a hundred years from now, are few, isolated, and without influence. Most of them, indeed, are in voluntary or forced exile. The vast majority of that party now form the Liberal Party, which is devoted to reform, but not to immediate democracy. That a people sufficiently educated in politics should rule themselves, is an abstract statement, which even Princes will sometimes admit. But it was made evident, in 1849, that the German people, as a mass, are not so educated; and the obvious and practical way of accomplishing their elevation is, not to plunge them at once into unlimited liberty, but to emancipate them gradually, peacefully, and surely, under a constitutional monarchy. That this is the foundation idea of the Liberals, there can be no doubt. And in Prussia, Bavaria, and other States, they have already won an ascendancy, which they will not lose.

Their main object, to judge from their course, is the union of the German States under one Government. This they seem to consider essential to thorough reform. It will give the nation a strength and influence in Europe, which will secure her against assault from without, and release her from much of the expensive military establishment now sustained by the separate States. And the people, thus united, will exert a power which would irresistibly carry out the necessary measures for general progress and reform.

To secure this end it is not necessary that the separate Governments should be annihilated. The States at present are united in the Bund, which is little more than a military alliance. They want a general Parliament or Congress, and a constitution resembling the American. Then the separate Governments, no longer obliged to keep up standing armies, (that being under the control of the Confederation,) would turn their attention to internal improvements, and rapidly become models of such a union between People and Rulers, as the world elsewhere could not furnish. For Germany is in the position to grant her citizens both freedom and equality. In France, there is equality, but no freedom; in England great personal liberty, and class-slavery; but Germany alone contains the elements of equality, not caused by oppression, and freedom untrammeled by aristocracy. For the German nobility are not like those of England, a class of men whose deeds are interwoven with the most glorious parts of their country's history, whose arms have defended her from outward danger and purified her from internal abuse. They point back to no Magna Charta, as the evidence of their power and patriotism. They are, as an order, unpopular, uninfluential, useless. And they stand in nobody's way, who would establish, when the time is ripe, a democracy over them, or at least, a state of things where talent and worth should alone be the passport to rank and power.

The immediate expressed desire of the Liberal Party is to have a German Bund—not between Princes, like the present one; but between the peoples of Central Europe themselves. And the present action of Prussia will have the greatest effect on the future in this respect. Said a remarkably observant and intelligent German to me, "If Prussia conducts herself now, in such a manner as to justify the confidence which is felt in the Government,—then the way will be open for a peaceful reform, under Constitutional monarchy, of all Central Europe, including Austria and Austrian Italy. But if the Kreuz-Zeitung Party—the Anti-Liberal Party—gain once more the supremacy in Prussia, the people will trust their Governments no longer; the last hope of Constitutional Monarchy is extinguished; and we may look within ten years for more stormy revolutions."

Into this New Prussia-German Bund, it is not proposed that Austria shall enter. Her religion, position, and interests are alien from those of Germany. It would be very interesting to sketch the programme laid down for Austria by a pamphlet recently published by a Hungarian; but it would draw me too far from the main question. The sum of it is, that Austria, by dealing justly and honorably with the seven or eight nations over which she rules, would make them cling to each other and to her, through their own interests; since they would be sure of protection and influence, thus united in one Great Power. But the minuter details of this plan are foreign to our purpose.

There are specific things also for which the Liberals strive, and which come within the range of ordinary legislation. They relate to the taxes, modes of collecting the same, &c., above all to the elective franchise. For instance, in Baden the whole population is divided into three classes, according to their income. I believe every man has a vote; but the election laws are such that the first class, or rich voters, (who are necessarily few,) the second, or middle class, and the third, or poor class, comprising the mass of the people, are made to balance each other equally in power, so that property is the only basis of representation. Then, as the only safeguard of a free ballot-box, the free school will be introduced, that this people, who are even now more generally educated than any other, shall become absolutely and wholly intelligent, in their own national affairs. And when these things are accomplished, say the Liberals, it will be time enough to look further. We do not expect to attain all this in less than fifty or a hundred years; but we have learned "to labor and to wait."

Let us consider now, for a moment, what effect the present war will have on these prospects. If Germany enters the war, united and enthusiastic, and the power of France is checked, once for all, not only will Europe be safe on that side from further aggression, but people will have been welded together in the heat of their mutual emulation and ardor, and the greatest obstacle to a German Union, the jealousies of the different States, will have vanished. The princes, thus defended and sustained by their subjects, will be obliged to respect the will of the people; for in times of such enthusiasm, it is impossible to withstand the current; and thus, out of the cloud of conflict and turmoil, a better day seems already to dawn on Germany.

Austria, rescued by Germany, will listen to the voice of her deliverers, and put herself in the ranks of Human Progress—not suddenly, not completely, but at least partially and hopefully. It is with this expectation that Germany, hating intensely the Austrian despotism and diplomacy, defends Austria, rather than anarchy or aggression.

To come back from this speculation, and ask the question, "But what will Prussia or Austria do?" that's quite another thing! That the looks of things are decidedly warlike, is undoubtedly true. At present everything seems to hang upon the result of the actual campaign, which has thus, within a few days, assumed a more than intrinsic interest. If Austria can whip France alone, Germany won't interfere. If the result be otherwise, as is to be feared, then—we shall see what we shall see! The explanations of this letter, however, will apply to either case; and I have taken care to make such statements that whatever turns out I may say, like the New York Herald, "just as WE long ago prophesied!" R. W. R.

GENERAL MARKETS.

NEW-YORK, Monday, June 13, 1859—6 P. M.

The reported receipts of the principal kinds of Produce, since our last, have been 64 bbls. Ashes, 8,665 bbls. Flour, 353 sacks Corn Meal, 8,038 bushels Wheat, 20,665 bushels Corn, 278 bushels Rye, 12,542 bushels Oats, 754 pkgs. Provisions, 754 bbls. Whisky.

ASHES—Sales, to-day, 55 bbls. Pots at $5 37½, and small lots of Pearls at $5 75@$5 81¼ ℔ 100 lbs.

COFFEE—Sales have been limited, to-day, comprising only 120 bags Maracaibo, at 11¼c.@11½c., with 100 bags choice St. Domingo and Cape, at 9½c.@9¾c. ℔ lb. Stock of Rio and Santos, in first hands, this evening, 40,000 bags.

COTTON—About 1,000 bales have been disposed of, to-day, and prices have advanced ⅛c. ℔ lb., closing with Middling Uplands, at 11½c.@11¾c., and do. Gulfs, at 11¾c.@11⅞c. ℔ lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western Flour has been in good demand, to-day, and prices have been well supported, holders, in some instances, having obtained a slight advance on Saturday's closing quotations. The principal purchases have been made by regular trade, whose supplies had decreased materially during the past week or two, while they bought very sparingly, anticipating a reduction, instead of an improvement, in the value of desirable lots. The leading holders did not press their stocks on the market, and did not evince any great lack of confidence. The result has been that buyers have had to replenish their supplies, and to do so, they have been obliged to pay somewhat firmer prices. The speculative demand, based on the frost accounts from the West, has been rather limited; sales have been reported, since our last, of 11,800 bbls.

Rejected Superfine State	$4 50@ 5 00
Standard Superfine State	6 25@ 6 55
Extra State	6 75@ 7 00
Standard Superfine Western	6 25@ 6 60

Extra Genesee	7 70@ 9 50
Low to choice Extra Missouri	7 80@10 00
Low to very choice extra Tennessee	7 80@10 50

Southern Flour is in less request to-day, at, however, uniform rates. Sales have been reported of only 1,250 bbls., in lots, at $7 25@$7 60 for mixed brands, and $7 65@$9 50 for low fancy to very choice extra brands, ℔ bbl. Rye Flour is quiet at $4@$5 40 for fine and superfine, ℔ bbl. Corn Meal is attracting more attention at $4 20 for Jersey, and $4 50 for Brandywine, ℔ bbl. Puncheons of the latter are quoted at $20 75@$21.

HAY—Sales to-day, 1,200 bales North River, at 60c.@70c. per 100 lbs.

GRAIN—Holders of Wheat are asking prices above the views of most buyers; hence business lacks animation, though the inquiry for desirable lots is fair. Sales have been reported, to-day, of only 3,500 bush., including fair White Western at $1 75; amber Western at $1 70; Red do. (Winter) at $1 60; Prime Milwaukee Club at $1 35; Prime White Kentucky at $1 93; and choice new Red Georgia at $2 ℔ bush. Corn has been in good request at uniform quotations. Sales have been made, to-day, of 26,000 bush., at 86½c.@89c. for old and new Mixed Western; 89c.@92c. for poor to good Round and Jersey yellow; 90c.@93c. for inferior Western yellow; 93c.@96c. for Southern yellow; and 89c.@92c. for poor to good white Southern, ℔ bushel. Rye is in moderate supply and limited demand at 97c.@98c. ℔ bushel. Barley is dull and heavy at 60c.@72½c. ℔ bushel. Oats are freely offered and are moderately inquired for at easier rates. Canada at 52c.@55c.; Western, 51c.@54c.; State, 46c.@52c.; Jersey and Pennsylvania, 47c.@50c.; Southern, 44c.@48c., ℔ bushel.

PROVISIONS—Pork has been actively dealt in, at firmer rates, especially for Mess. Sales have been reported of 5,500 bbls., in lots, at $17@$17 25, now generally held at $17 25 for Mess; $17 75@$18 50 for Prime Mess; $19 50@$19 50 for Clear, $17 25 for thin Mess, $16 62½ for sour Mess, $16 12½ for soft Mess, and $15 12½@$15 25 for Prime, ℔ bbl. Cut Meats are in moderate request, including Hams at 8c.@9½c., and Shoulders at 6¾c.@7c. ℔ lb. Bacon continues inactive, chiefly at 6¾c.@10½c. ℔ lb. Lard is quiet and heavy. Sales to-day 200 tcs. and bbls., in lots, at 11c.@11½c. ℔ lb. Beef is selling slowly at old rates. Sales 235 bbls., in lots, at $9 25@$12 50 for repacked Western Mess; $14@$15 50 for fair to choice extra do.; $8 25@$9 25 for Country Mess, and $4 50@$7 for do. Prime, ℔ bbl. Prime Mess Beef, $17@$25 ℔ tc. Beef Hams, $14 50@$18 ℔ bbl. Butter is in moderate demand at 15c.@19c. for New State; 12c.@17c. for New Ohio, ℔ lb. SEEDS—Sales in Boston, 4,000 bags Bombay Linseed, at $1 73 ℔ bushel.

SUGARS—Sales have been made, to-day, of 410 hhds. Cuba at 6⅛c.@6¾c., chiefly within the range; 60 hhds. Porto Rico at 6¼c.@6¾c.; and 2,121 boxes Havana, part at 8½c., but mainly on private terms, ℔ lb.

TALLOW—Sales, to-day, 8,000 lbs., at unchanged rates.

WHISKY—Is inactive and depressed, at 26½c.@27c., chiefly at 26½c., ℔ gallon.

FREIGHTS—For Liverpool there were taken 200 bbls. Spirits Turpentine at 2s.; 600 cases Sago at 9d.; 50 tcs. Lard at 10s.; 150 tons Logwood at 12s.; 100 bales Flax Hair at 20s. For London, 100 bbls. NEWS OF THE DAY.

The steamship Fulton, from Southampton on the 1st inst., arrived at this port late last night. She brings London papers of the day of sailing, from which we obtain full details of the news, a brief summary of which we received from Quebec, as brought by the North Briton, and published yesterday morning. The intelligence relative to the war is of the most interesting character.

The Star of the West, which arrived at this port very early yesterday morning, from Aspinwall June 3, brings $1,529,000 in specie, and the California mails to May 20. Political affairs in California were creating some excitement. Gov. Weller had published an appeal for reëlection, addressed to the Democratic Party of the State. Great complaints continue to be made of the overcrowded state of the Pacific steamers.

News from Oregon, to May 7, indicates an increased excitement in political affairs. The split in the Democratic Party was becoming wider, and the claims of the rival Congressional candidates were being pushed with vigor. The new military dispositions ordered by General Harney had been devised to protect the route to the northern mines.

Dates from British Columbia are to May 14. The amount of gold shipped from Fraser's River from April 11 to May 10 was $195,000. The number of men at the mines was rated from 2,000 to 3,000. The accounts of the yield of gold were conflicting. An attempt had been made to fit out an exploring expedition to Queen Charlotte's Island.

By the Star of the West we receive our usual South American correspondence. The blockade of Guayaquil is still maintained by the Peruvian squadron, and the consequent distress of the country had found vent in various movements adverse to the actual Government. Some discord has occurred in Peru between the President and the Chambers, arising out of the wish of the former to obtain a new loan, and to augment the army. The [illegible] the Legislature desires to indulge, are some hostile demonstrations of [illegible] upon the southern frontier. Bolivia is entirely quiet, and actively progressive. In Chili the Government forces had been successful against the insurgents, both in the north and in the south. A battle which occurred near Coquimbo, April 29, resulted in the entire defeat of the revolutionary army, and its subsequent dispersion. A fresh difficulty, involving the American flag, had occurred at Valparaiso, the authorities having seized an American brig laden with arms, and retained possession upon suspicion that the cargo was destined for the insurgents. The Austrian exploring vessel, the Novara, was at Valparaiso. The Congress of New-Granada adjourned May 8; the most noteworthy act of the session being the new electoral law, which, it is represented, converts the confederation into a central absolutism. The revolutionary movement in Santander is still active.

From Central America we have intimations of approaching hostilities between Nicaragua and Costa Rica on the subject of the Transit Route. The party of M. Belly are reported as being sick of their undertaking, and about to take flight for France.

The steamship Philadelphia, from Havana June 8, arrived here last evening. The news is one day later. The health of that port was never so favorable as thus far in the present season.

We have dates from Turk's Island to June 2. Heavy rains had visited the Island, seriously interfering with the salt business.

We have important intelligence from Arizona. A mass meeting of citizens had been held at Arizona City to remonstrate against the inaction of the General Government in failing to provide for a Territorial organization. A series of strong resolutions was adopted, and it was resolved to call a Territorial Convention at Tucson on the 27th of June.

The Germans of Baltimore had a grand festival on Saturday, in anticipation of the annual celebration of Pfingstmontag. Thirty-two visiting societies from other cities were present. There was a procession, accompanied by an illumination, and followed by a banquet.

The wife of Capt. Hudson, who commanded the Niagara while she was engaged in laying the Atlantic Telegraph cable, has been presented by the Emperor of Russia with a diamond brooch valued at $2,000, in acknowledgment of the courtesy extended by Capt. Hudson to several Russian naval officers, who were on board the Niagara during the expedition.

The bark J. J. Cobb, which was picked up on the 29th ult., twenty miles from Matanzas, scuttled and abandoned, after having evidently landed a cargo of Africans on the coast of Cuba, formerly belonged to Mora Brothers, Navarro & Co., of this City, by whom she was sold in Cuba, between two and three years ago. She was 307 tons burden, built at Robbinston, Me., in 1856, and has been variously employed since. In December last she sailed from Havana with a cargo of rum, ostensibly bound to St. Thomas and Antwerp, in command of one Captain Patterson, and she has not been seen or heard of until fallen in with as above. She was towed into Havana by the schooner Cumberland, Captain Symmes, of New-York. The schooner Wanderer is reported as having sailed from Havana for Matanzas on the 3d inst.

The Board of Aldermen, last evening, confirmed the Mayor's nomination of Daniel E. Delavan for City Inspector. Considerable routine business was transacted, but little that was of public interest, and the Board adjourned to Thursday.

The Board of Councilmen met last night and accepted Mr. Conover's proposal to keep in repair all the roads on Manhattan Island for $50,000 a year. They also voted to accept the report in favor of giving the street-cleaning of the City to Messrs. Johnson & Sayre, but, by way of amendment, added also the names of Messrs. Earle and [illegible]. The sum named for this work, and it was the highest required in any of the bids, was $300,000.

The Turnvereins, Saengerbund and kindred German societies of this City celebrated their ninth "Pfingstmontag" yesterday, at Elm Park, with more than the usual spirit. At least six thousand persons were present. The proceedings were in every way interesting and decorous.

The City Guard make their twenty-sixth anniversary excursion to-day. They go to West Point, where a grand reception awaits them. Before embarking, they will pay a marching salute to the Milwaukee Light Guard, now staying at the Astor House. The City Guard have the deserved reputation of being the finest military company in the City.

The action brought by Mr. W. W. Smith against the proprietors of the Times for the publication of Donnelly's speech delivered at his execution for the murder of Moses, the barkeeper of the Seaview House, was brought on for trial yesterday, in the Superior Court. The legal right of the defendants to publish the article in question being contended for on their part, the Judge directed the Jury to assess the damages and render a verdict subject to the opinion of the Court. The Jury rendered a verdict for the defendants; which was changed as a matter of form to a verdict for the plaintiff for nominal damages.

The third trial of James Graham, for the murder of Richard Owens, in Elm-street, in February last, was commenced yesterday, before Judge Davies, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer. At the adjournment of the Court eleven jurors had been sworn.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, before Recorder Barnard, Christopher Miller, a little boy, curiously charged with assault and battery on a little girl, was placed at the bar by District-Attorney Waterbury. He mounted a horse, it appeared from the evidence, in Avenue B, and rode over the said girl, inflicting injuries from which she recovered. He was quite a little boy, and his defence was that he could not restrain the horse. The jury convicted him, but recommended him to mercy. He was sentenced to the City Prison for five days, and fined $50. William Schreiner pleaded guilty to passing counterfeit money. There were six indictments against him on similar charges. He was sent to the State Prison for five years. Hermann Eppstein was tried for receiving stolen goods and acquitted.

The Brooklyn Common Council voted, last night, that a horse railroad on Grand-street, Eastern District, was necessary, and directed the City Clerk to publish the notice required by the Railroad act, calling for proposals for the privilege of the route. This line will extend from the foot of South Seventh-street, through Grand-street and Maspeth-avenue to Newtown.

Cotton advanced ⅛c. ℔ ℔ yesterday, with sales of 1000 bales. Flour was in good demand, and prices favored sellers. Wheat was in request, but the firmness of holders checked business. Corn was moderately dealt in at uniform rates. Pork was actively inquired for at improved prices. Lard, Beef, Coffee, Sugars, Molasses, Oils and Whisky, were less sought after. Hay, Sole Leather, Common Resin and Spirits Turpentine were in fair demand. The Freight engagements were moderate.

A City Inspector at Last.

By a unanimous vote, the Aldermen last evening confirmed the Mayor's nomination of Daniel E. Delavan as City Inspector. The language of their resolution of confirmation,—"that the Board do advise and consent to the appointment," &c.—while it was necessary to their own consistency, involves a wanton insult to Mr. Delavan. He probably will not resent it, however, on the ground that nobody will believe it true that the Aldermen "advised" his nomination. They have kept his name in Alderman Boole's pocket for a fortnight, which is ample evidence that they did not "advise" his appointment, and they have only consented to it because they could not do better. When Alderman Adams heard that they were about to adopt the confirmation unanimously, he intimated that they had probably "seen" Delavan. Now to be "seen by the Aldermen" means something more than that one's fleshly body has passed in review before our august City Fathers, and the image of his substance rested for a moment upon their optic nerves. That the candidate for City Inspector has been "seen by the Aldermen," means that he has been closeted with an Aldermanic Committee, and that certain serious questions have been put to him, all tending to the one grand query: Would he strive his utmost if appointed to carry through six great schemes now understood to be on foot for undermining the Municipal treasury?

Now, that Mr. Delavan was "seen" so far as to be fully catechized we do not doubt; but that he answered satisfactorily, we are glad to believe that his confirmation does not prove. Mr. Delavan has the reputation of being an honest man, and, moreover, he is too shrewd a politician to commit political suicide in the vulgar fashion common with City Inspectors. Why then do the Aldermen unanimously confirm him?

In the first place, the exposure made in this journal of the six prospective schemes, to which we have alluded, has inspired the Aldermanic engineers with wholesome terror. Then, the Board of Councilmen are not all satisfied with the shape that affairs have been taking. The Aldermen would have preferred that there should be no City Inspector appointed at all, nor any contracts made. It would then have become their duty to have the necessary street cleaning done by days' work; the Ward Inspectors would have been called to supervise this work—the Aldermen, having all the patronage in their own hands, would have ruled the Ward Inspectors. This was a fine plan for the Aldermen, but a poor plan for the Councilmen; and as the smaller Board could not perfect many of its schemes without the coöperation of the larger, it was worth while for the former to pay some attention to the threats of the latter, and put things into such a form that the profits might be shared. But a still more potent argument proceeded from the Mayor's Office. Ever since His Honor stormed the City Inspector's Rooms through its second-floor windows, and assumed to himself the captaincy of the Inspector's Department, the Aldermen had been aware that without assuming any more doubtful powers," Mr. Tiemann might at once advertise for proposals and insist, just as the Charter does, that the lowest responsible bidder should take the job of street-cleaning. Should the Mayor adopt this policy, as acting City Inspector, he would share with the Comptroller and Corporation Counsel the entire disposition of three hundred thousand dollars per year. The Mayor had shown no disposition to do any such desperate thing, but it was rumored that he might be driven to the resolution, and indeed that he had already come to the end of his patience, and named his last candidate. What better could the Alderman do in the circumstances than they did? The nominee was entirely satisfactory to their "party," and indeed it would have been rather awkward to reject so noted a sachem. They postponed final action long enough to leave it always doubtful whether they had been compelled to forego all their coveted spoils or not. They make friends with inevitable fate and hope for the best.

As for the new Inspector himself, if he accepts office unpledged, he has a world of work to do, which, faithfully done, will reflect great credit upon him, before reaching those more radical and delicate duties on the performance of which the model Inspector of the future must found his fame. If he will throw overboard pending illegal contracts for the street cleaning—will refuse all complicity in any projected "little arrangements," and turn out of doors a crowd of ignorant and imbecile dependents, to replace them with a corps of competent men, fit to do the duty of his subordinates—he will gain lasting laurels, and put the tax-payers of New-York under a thousand obligations.

THE TWO BOBBIOS.—The New-York Herald will insist upon it that there are two Bobbios in Italy as there were two Dromios in the "Comedy of Errors." It also demands a river Gogna for Sardinia. There is in fact, however, a certain river Agugna in Sardinia, which has played no inconsiderable part in the present campaign, and may play a greater part in time to come. And, there are also two towns in Sardinia, one of which, named Robbio, lies not far from the said river Agugna, while the other named Bobbio lies far away beyond the Po and near the frontier of Parma. One of these towns the Austrians, it seems, have recently occupied in force. If the town in question be Bobbio, they had already taken possession of it on the 13th of May. If on the other hand it be Robbio which they have honored with their presence, the movement indicates a disposition to contest the Lomelline with the Franco-Sardinian army, which has already in part passed the Sesia under the King of Sardinia, while the Emperor of the French had moved his head-quarters to Casale, as an indication of some great eastward movement of the main body at no distant day.

Libel Suits and the Press.

In perfect conformity with the precedents of several years' experience, a suit for libel brought against the Times by Mr. W. W. Smith, was yesterday terminated in favor of this journal. The circumstances of this particular case throw so much light upon the ordinary origin of libel suits against the Press, and the fashion of its settlement is so full of wholesome instruction for those whom a moment of very natural excitement may lead into litigation with the daily journals, that we think it worthy a moment's attention from our readers.

About eighteen months ago, a young man named Moses was murdered in the hotel kept by Mr. Smith at Nevasink. Suspicion fastened at once upon an inmate of the house, who was arrested, brought to trial, convicted and executed. The scene of his execution was made more than usually painful by the conduct of the unhappy prisoner, who, evidently laboring under the most intense excitement, reviewed his own case in a passionately incoherent and illogical speech, the tenor of which went to show that he was really innocent of the crime for which he was to suffer, and that the guilty person was the landlord of the hotel himself. This speech was reproduced by the Reporters of the Press, and appeared, with other news of the day, in the Times. We took occasion, however, to point out to our readers the utterly worthless character of this most pitiable harangue; and it never for an instant occurred to us that any reasonable being could think of bestowing the least heed upon its accusations.

Mr. Smith, however, on reading the account of the execution, became naturally indignant at finding his name coupled in the public prints with these ravings of a man maddened by shame and misery, and the near approach of death. He thought, as many men in the like position have, doubtless, thought before him, that the Press ought to be held responsible for the publicity given to such charges; and, notwithstanding our careful explanation of our own views on the subject, he prosecuted us for libel. The suit has been consummated; and while the character of Mr. Smith—never for an instant impugned—has come out of the ordeal unscathed, the evident equity of the case has been confirmed to the Times. We have not been found guilty of libel, for the good and sufficient reason that there has been no libel perpetrated. We had incidentally fallen upon the misfortune of disseminating a charge which no sane man could for a moment entertain seriously, and the law absolves us from any responsibility for this act. In nine instances out of ten such must be the termination of suits for libel against the Press. Not once in twenty years can any journal having the slightest claim to respectability be expected to be proved guilty of libel in the full sense of that word. All considerations of justice and good feeling apart, it is so manifestly against the interest of every newspaper seeking reputation as an authority, to make itself the organ of personal spite, or petty malignity, that any private individual who may find his name accidentally connected by a leading journal with some disgraceful aspersions to which he is not liable, will always find it in every respect the wisest course for him to apply immediately to the authorities of the journal itself, and request of them a full correction of the misstatement. To resort at once to the weapons of the law in such cases is but a little wiser than it would be to draw a bowie-knife or revolver and anticipate all explanations by slaying the supposed offender. The freedom of the Press to comment upon passing events, and to give the public full chronicles of the history of each successive day, is recognized both by our laws and our customs as an integral element in our civilization. Where a reckless and licentious abuse of this freedom can be proved, it should, of course, be severely punished, and always will be while our Courts retain any character of judicial honesty. But such abuse should never be presumed. A suit for libel is a simple cutting off of all communications between the suitor and the sued. The person who thinks himself libeled in the Press, to-day, and by a courteous representation of the fact secures a retraction to-morrow, has achieved the best possible remedy of his wrong. The imputation vanishes with the disavowal, and the matter has come to an end. But he who chooses litigation as his means of redress, is sure only of a long and fatiguing interval of unpleasant excitement and of a heavy bill of legal costs. The chances are overwhelmingly against a verdict in his favor, and must continue to be so, while the public remain persuaded of the general justice and honesty with which the Press is, and for its own sake must be, administered.

THE AUSTRIAN ACCOUNT OF THE ACTION OF MONTEBELLO.—The Fulton brings us, at last, the official Austrian account of the action of the 20th of May. It is a carefully-prepared document, but bears such obvious marks of preparation for the sake of producing a specific impression, that the London Times itself, in comparing it with the Sardinian version of the same affair, is forced to admit that the Austrian is superior to the Italian as "Defoe is superior to the author of Baron Munchausen." The "monstrous exaggeration" of the French numbers in the Austrian dispatch is also justly commented upon by the British apologist of Austria, who concludes, after a careful examination of Count Gyulai's elaborate plea for a victory, that the "result of the battle was honorable to the French, and that it will be for the Austrians to show, if they can, in future engagements, that the success of their enemies was due, not to superior military qualities, but only to the uncertain fortune of war."

The outrageously inaccurate and dishonest character of Count Gyulai's statement indeed fully bears out the criticism of Jomini, which we have already quoted in these columns, upon the respective values of French and Austrian bulletins of war. The Sardinian story seems also to have been very highly colored in a sense opposite from the Austrian; and the substantial truth of history is undoubtedly to be looked for in the modest, decisive and intelligible dispatch of Gen. Forey.

THE DELEGATE WAR.—We almost begin to fear that there is, after all, a degree of trouble deep in the bosom of the Democracy respecting the best mode of appointing delegates to Charleston. Most of the papers of that party express themselves in favor of the District system. That this is contrary to the programme, and that it will be quashed when the proper time comes, no sensible politician can for a moment doubt. Mr. Cassidy, of the Albany Atlas, and Mr. Dean Richmond, of the State Committee, know all this as well as we could tell them. They will listen to the remonstrances of the Hards with composure, give a polite ear to the Sage of Binghamton's friends, and talk gently as sucking doves about union, harmony and success. But when the Democratic State Convention meets, in the Fall, will they be moved from their purpose by the New-York News or the Albany Standard? We rather think not. Will they stop to consider how many village journals have expressed a preference for the District System? No, indeed. New-York must be a unit in Charleston. New-York must have no candidate, from the southern tier, or till the front rank of aspirants has fallen.

If, in the course of events, in order to save the harmony of the National Democracy, New-York is compelled to bring forth a man for the Presidency, why then it will be more important than ever that she should appear in the character of a unit.

It is all very well for the Hards to elicit public opinion, and publish long lists of Democratic organs; but the thing is already settled. The "documents," if they would like to see them, may be found in Dean Richmond's overcoat pocket.

THE WOMAN'S HOSPITAL AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Our readers, fashionable, musical, charitable, curious, idle and busy, must not, for their own sakes, be suffered to forget that Bellini's magnificent opera of "I Puritani" is to be performed at the Academy of Music to-night, for the benefit of one of the noblest benevolent institutions of New-York.

The cast of the opera for this occasion is an event in its way, including as it does, in the character of Elvira, a New-York lady of the highest distinction, Madame le Comtesse de Ferussac, formerly Miss Thorne, whose reputation de salon as an artist of the rarest quality should of itself suffice to fill the house. Madame de Ferussac will, moreover, be supported by the full force of Mr. Strakosch's unrivaled operatic army, and everything augurs one of the most delightful operatic fêtes of the season. Those who cannot hear "I Puritani" to-night will do well to absent themselves from town immediately.

A CORRECTION.—In the communication of Mr. Woodruff, published yesterday morning, the quantity of offal removed by him was stated as 2,000 tons. It should have been 200,000 per annum.

Pfingst-Montag.

NINTH ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF THE NEW-YORK TURNVEREINS—FESTIVITIES IN ELM PARK.

"Pfingst-Montag,"—Pentecost, or Whit-Monday, is the great festival day of the year with the Germans of the Old World and the New. They celebrate it if they are "City pent," by excursions into the country;—if they dwell in the country, they still have their festive out-door recreations. It is their welcome to the Spring,—their rejoicing that "Winter is over and gone, and the voice of the turtle is heard in the land."

Yesterday, our German citizens of this City and its vicinity, turned out in their thousands for this most worthy festival. It was "Pfingst-Montag." Wherever a German is, all the world over, he remembers that day. So, yesterday, the principal streets of the City were paraded by a procession of Germans, bound for Elm Park, in somewhat of the following order, and much gazed at by admiring citizens:

The Union Hussar Company, Third Regiment, Captain Sauer, mounted on fine horses and presenting a noble appearance; Dodworth's Germania Band; Company F of the Eleventh Regiment, Captain Lux; Band of the New-York German Rifle Corps; the New-York Rifle Corps, Captain Busch; the Festival Committee and Marshals, with their Adjutants; the invited Turners, with the delegation from other cities; the Bands of the Krahkehla Gambrinia, and Bummelia Unions.

The Glee Clubs followed; the New-York Liedertafel and Maennerchor, the Allemania Club, the Frohsinn, Helvetia, Columbia, Mozart, Euphonia, Colonia, Saengerrunde, Schillerbund, Rheinischer Saengerbund, Teutonia Maennerchor, and many other companies, equally important, which we have not space to particularize.

Starting from Harmony Garden, Essex-street, at 9 o'clock in the morning, they marched through Grand-street, Bowery, Chatham-street, the Park, up Broadway, down Canal-street, to the foot of Spring-street, where the Alice Price and the Island Home were in waiting to convey them to Striker's Bay, whence an easy road conducted them to Elm Park, the place of their destination.

By 2 o'clock, notwithstanding the ominous clouds, threatening rain, at least six thousand persons, women and children included, (and they equaled the men in numbers,) were assembled in Elm Park. A better place could not have been chosen. The trees are of the old native growth, with interlacing boughs, and when the rain did come pattering down, which it did three or four times, it only made a pleasant music on the leaves, and did not harm the gay hats of the ladies, which were tied to the branches and depended therefrom, like fruit pleasant to the eye, but forbidden to the touch. Underneath each tree a group of unbonneted, laughing women were enjoying themselves, plates and lager-bier glasses forming part of the crowd. They were like apples shaken from the trees of Paradise. It was dangerous for a bachelor to walk among them.

Precisely at two o'clock the singing by the various glee clubs commenced. Afterwards followed the gymnastic feats in relation to which special mention should be made to the feats of several of the juvenile Turners, boys from ten to fifteen years old, about 200 of whom were present. Many of these little fellows performed astonishing things in the "Turner" or gymnastic line. The adult Turners were equal to their established reputation. Those who have not witnessed their feats can have but little idea of them.

Mayor Tiemann was invited to the festival and intended to be present but business interfered with his inclination. Police Commissioner Stilwell and Deputy-Superintendent Carpenter were there, and in reply to Mr. Kaufmann, President of the German Republican Central Club, made neat speeches, highly complimentary to the Germans. The whole proceedings at the festival were more than usually pleasant. If the day had been brighter and there had been no constant threatening of rain, nothing would have been wanting to have rendered the "Pfingst-Montag" of this year, the best of the nine years of anniversaries which the Turnvereins have celebrated. As it was, it was one of the best, and deserves a hearty encomium.

From Havana.

NEWS ONE DAY LATER—ARRIVAL OF THE PHILADELPHIA—THE HEALTH OF THE PORT.

The U. S. mail steamship Philadelphia, Elisha Howes, Esq., commanding, left New-Orleans June 5 for New-York via Havana, at which port she arrived on the morning of the 8th, and sailed on the P. M. of the same day, arriving at this port last evening. The Philadelphia transferred 104 passengers at Havana, and brings 164 passengers, a fair cargo, and $315,000 in specie for New-York.

She passed U. S. M. steamer Empire City the P. M. of the 8th, about 30 miles this side of Havana.

There was little of interest occurring at Havana. The Island is healthier at present than it has been known to be in many years at the same period.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

CHARLESTON, Sunday, June 12.

The steamer Isabel, arrived to-day, brings Havana dates of the 10th. Reports Sugar quiet; stock at Havana and Matanzas, 400,000 boxes. Molasses unchanged. Freights inactive.

FIRE IN EAST TWENTY-FIFTH-STREET.—Yesterday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, a fire broke out in the Empire Kindling-wood Factory, No. 73 East Twenty-fifth-street, owned and occupied by Wm. L. Williams. The fire was first discovered in the vicinity of the boiler connected with the engine. The flames spread with great rapidity, and in a few minutes adjoining stables were also in a blaze. The firemen prevented the flames from extending beyond the factory and stables. Damage about $5,000—not insured.

WEST POINT ACADEMY.

Annual Examination.

INCIDENTS OF THE WEEK—THE EXAMINING COMMITTEE—NAMES OF THE GRADUATING CLASS.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

WEST POINT, Monday, June 13, 1859.

As a legitimate result of the northeast winds which have prevailed for the last day or two, we are enjoying the luxury of an energetic rain. All the morning the clouds scudded about as if uncertain what their work was to be. Finally they settled sullenly down on the sides of the mountains and are now relieving themselves of their liquid burdens. A few ladies resolutely persisted until noon in strolling through the grounds attached to the Academy; then they found themselves obliged to retire under shelter. After dinner a few endeavored to enjoy the prospect from the piazza of the hotel, but the water view so predominated that these finally found themselves under the necessity of retreating to the halls and parlors of the building where they are at present enjoying themselves as they are best able to. Of course the storm has proved a most disagreeable interruption to the out-door exercises of Examination-week in the Military Academy.

By an act of Congress approved Aug. 8, 1846, the President is authorized to appoint a Board of Visitors to attend this annual examination. The whole number of visitors each year is not to exceed one half the number of States in the Union. They are to be selected alternately from every second state, each member of the Board being a bona fide resident citizen of the State from which he is appointed, not less than six members are to be taken from among officers actually serving in the militia, and a second member is not to be taken from any Congressional District until every other District in the State shall have supplied a member. No compensation is to be made to these visitors beyond the payment of their board while at the Military Academy, and an allowance not to exceed eight cents per mile for traveling by the shortest mail route from their homes to the Academy and back. It is their duty to report at the commencement of the session of Congress next succeeding their visit the actual state of the discipline, instruction, police administration and fiscal affairs of the institution. The visitors for the present year are as follows:

Colonel Rufus L. Baker, Connecticut.
Dr. John P. Barnes, Alabama.
Major William Beard, Louisiana.
George W. Cass, Esq., Pennsylvania.
Gen. George E. Danforth, New-York.
Charles Eldridge, Esq., Wisconsin.
Hon. Augustine Haines, Maine.
Col. John E. Heard, Massachusetts.
Ethelbert Hibben, Oregon.
Col. John Johnston, Ohio.
Hon. John Kerr, North Carolina.
Capt. Thomas T. Lee, Maryland.
Gen. S. B. Lowry, Minnesota.
L. R. Page, Esq., Mississippi.
Gen. T. C. Smith, Florida.
Ebenezer Starnes, Esq., Georgia.
V. P. Van Antwerp, Esq., Iowa.

Of these individuals Dr. Barnes, of Alabama, declined to serve. The Board was organized by the election of Col. Johnston, of Ohio, as President, and Col. Heard, of Massachusetts, as Secretary. The examinations began Thursday the 2d inst., and have proceeded daily since, occupying from 9 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. They will probably be concluded this afternoon. The Committee express themselves gratified with the efficiency displayed thus far, but the effect which the examinations may have on the relative standing of the members of the lower classes cannot be known for some days to come.

Each afternoon, during the examination, the cadets have had out-door exercises for the edification of the members of the Board of Visitors, as well as for the special delectation of the ladies. Wednesday, the 1st of June, and the day preceding the commencement of the examination, a collation was served at the Superintendent's, Col. Delafield's. Members of the Visiting Board who had arrived were present, as well as numerous ladies. Thursday, the cadets were reviewed. Friday, they displayed their skill in handling sea-coast artillery.

This [illegible] very effective and highly creditable. Monday a Battalion Drill took place; Tuesday the cadets were exercised with the light artillery and the siege battery. Thursday they displayed their skill in riding the horse. Three hundred ladies and gentlemen witnessed this exercise in the riding hall. Afterwards the performances with the bayonet and [illegible] went through. Friday the cadets were to be practiced in mortar firing, but the exercise was postponed until this afternoon, when a brief lull in the storm enabled the graduating class to display the proficiency they had attained in the use of the mortar.

The following table shows the names of the different members of this class, their relative rank and their age when they entered the Academy. They complete a five years' course of instruction with their graduation:

Quite a number of visitors are at the Point at present. Gen. Scott is at Cozzens', but has no review of the cadets the present year. Col. Delafield, the commandant of the post, shows every attention to private visitors, but discourages the landing of large parties, as they break in upon the ordinary routine of the post, and are likely to interfere with the discipline of the cadets. Pic-nic parties are absolutely prohibited landing. W——.

THE CUBA QUESTION—INDICTMENT OF THE EX-SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC PRINTING, ETC.

WASHINGTON, Monday, June 13.

Recently-received information from Madrid, of an altogether reliable character, shows that however desirable it may be for the United States to acquire Cuba, there is no prospect whatever of such a consummation, nor is there any probability of the negotiation of a commercial treaty between Spain and this country.

The Grand Jury this morning found a true bill against Mr. [illegible], Ex-Superintendent of Public Printing, for malfeasance in office. The District Court has adjourned till December, and in the meantime a process will be issued for the arrest of the accused.

The contract for carrying the mails between New-Orleans and Key West, [illegible] has been awarded to the Southern Steamship Company. They are to receive $60,000, or $15,000 less than heretofore. The Company also agree to extend the trips to Havana, the postages to be the only compensation.

It is known that Mr. Mason, our Minister to France, is desirous of retaining his position more on account of his family's preference to remain abroad than his own; and that his resignation would long ago have been acceptable to the President. The rumor, however, that Senator [illegible] will be his successor is generally credited, although the truth of the report is not placed beyond doubt.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice [illegible].

THE OLD POLICE CASES.

The People ex rel. Thomas Beatty vs. The Board of Police.—The Court met pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Field resumed his argument, and took up the various objections made to the return. He contended that the respondents were right in disputing the original title of these claimants. Mr. Field then passed to the alleged repugnancy of the second and third branches of the return. He said it was well known to the Court that the actions of these relators were so extraordinary that they required special and perhaps unusual averments. They were found Policemen de facto, but refused to perform duty, and publicly declared that they did not belong to the Metropolitan force. The respondents, therefore, justly aver that they withdrew, the Court of Appeals having decided that they were, nolens volens, in office. Referring to Judge Strong's opinion in the Court of Appeals, Mr. Field argued that the decision in the case of McCune did not control these cases. The Court expressly leaves out of consideration the ordinance of the Common Council establishing a "Watch," and the collision at the City Hall, on the ground that it was not shown that McCune was concerned in the one or acted under the other. In these cases both these points are introduced; and they stand, therefore, upon a very different footing.

After reciting the different parts of the return, and claiming that they were proper issues of fact, Mr. Field insisted that a mandamus could not go to displace one man for the benefit of another, as it would decide upon a suit between two parties, the rights of a third. He referred to 6 Com. Law Reports, 260; and 33 Eng. Law and Eq., 87.

The Court inquired how it was that this question was not decided in the Court of Appeals?

Mr. Field replied that the question was not raised before it. It was not then averred that the force was full, as it now is. The Attorney-General can file a quo warranto to eject the 800 or more officers who have been, as the other side allege, illegally appointed in place of the old force. About 850 men have been removed, resigned, died, or in some way are disposed of without question.

AN EXCITING SCENE.

Mr. Field said that the counsel on the other side had been in the midst of his clients during the riots at the City Hall in 1857.

Mr. Dean rose with some warmth, and said the statement was untrue, and the learned counsel knew it.

Mr. Field reiterated his statement.

Mr. Dean said he was not there, but that Mr. Field was at that time in the Recorder's office, endeavoring to stir up a riot. [Here, the ex-policemen, who crowded the room, burst into loud applause.]

Mr. Field said that such conduct of itself was sufficient justification of the action of the Police Commissioners. If he were on the Board, he would never, except upon compulsion, replace these men, and if compelled to do so, would think it ample ground for their instant removal. The Court ought to be satisfied by such conduct, that these men were not entitled to any assistance in their efforts to obtain office, for which their conduct shows them clearly to be unfit.

Ex-Judge Dean, for the relators, supported the motion to quash the return. He insisted that it was evasive and inconsistent. In such case the Court should at once quash the writ.

Mr. Brady—You mean the return?

Mr. Field—No, no; he is quite right; the writ should be quashed. [Laughter.]

Mr. Dean accepted Mr. Brady's suggestion, and continued. He said that it was not alleged that his clients were removed, but that they did not do their duty. The Board itself did not do their duty, but did that of itself put them out of office?

Nor was it sufficient objection to the petitions of the relators that they did not allege that they were in office at and after the passing of the Police act, nor that they were citizens at that time, &c., &c., as claimed by respondents. The Board of Police might remove them if they wanted any of these requisites, but such deficiencies did not of themselves effect their displacement from office.

Mr. Dean contended that the return was impertinent and false—that it stated questions of law instead of matters of fact, and ought to be quashed with costs upon every application.

Mr. Brady is to follow on Tuesday.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.

Before Justice Slosson.

LIBEL SUIT AGAINST THE TIMES—REPORT OF DONNELLY'S EXECUTION—PUBLICATION OF OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS.

W. W. Smith vs. Henry J. Raymond and Edward B. Wesley.—This was an action against the defendants as the editor and proprietor of the TIMES for a libel. It will be remembered that, in January, 1858, young Donnelly was executed, in New-Jersey, for the murder of Albert S. Moses, a barkeeper at the Seaview House. At the time of his execution Donelly made a lengthy speech, in which he asseverated his own innocence, and attempted (most unjustifiably) to throw suspicion of the murder on an innocent man, the plaintiff in this action. A full report of the proceedings on the execution, including the speech of Donnelly, and this aspersion of the plaintiff was published in the TIMES of Jan. 9, 1858. Accompanying it, and in the same number of the paper, was an editorial article, expressing the fullest conviction that Donnelly was guilty and that his insinuations against the present plaintiff were merely invented in order to give his surviving relatives the comfort of believing that he was innocent.

For the publication of the passage of Donnelly's speech reflecting on this plaintiff, the latter brought the present action, which came on for trial to-day.

The evidence in the case was chiefly documentary. The plaintiffs put in evidence:

1. The libel itself, the publication of which was admitted.

2. The admission of defendants that the circulation of the TIMES at that time was thirty thousand copies.

The evidence for the defendants consisted in:

1. The testimony of the Sheriff of New-Jersey by whom Donnelly was executed, taken upon a commission. The principal point in his testimony was that it was always the custom in New-Jersey at the execution of convicts to ask them if they have anything to say, and to allow them to make a last dying speech upon the scaffold immediately prior to their execution. The custom was to allow them to say what they wish to. He (the Sheriff) never knew a case where this privilege was refused. This custom had existed as long as he had known anything about executions, say 25 years; how much longer he did not know. James Donelly made such a speech. On cross-examination he testified that Donnelly was executed at Freehold within an inclosed yard of the prison where he was confined, and, according to the statute of New Jersey. There were about ninety persons who were admitted as witnesses of the execution. He delivered his address in presence of these ninety persons only, and in the inclosed yard of the prison. It was not a written address.

2. The defence also put in evidence the editorial comments on the speech, published in the same issue, and already referred to; also offered a stipulation on the part of plaintiff conceding that the report was correct.

In addition to the facts above stated, the plaintiff offered an article quoted from another paper into the TIMES of September following, and referring to the case, but this was excluded by the court.

Benjamin Vaughan Abbott, for the defendants, said the defence would move to dismiss the complaint. He would make that motion under the act of 1854, chapter 130, which was as follows: "No reporter, editor or proprietor of any newspaper shall be liable to any action, &c., for a fair and true report in such newspaper of any judicial, legislative or other public official proceedings of any statement, speech, argument or debate in the course of the same, except upon actual proof of malice in making such report, which shall in no case be implied from the fact of publication." Counsel observed there was no question made in this case but that the report was fair and true. That was admitted. Nor was there any offer to show actual malice. The plaintiff relied only on the general implication of malice, founded on the fact of publication. The statute was, therefore, a perfect defence to the action, if the speech of Donnelly was a speech made in the course of a judicial or other public official proceeding. He would not, of course, contend that the speech was in itself a judicial proceeding or an official one; but it was a speech made [illegible] the proceeding. [illegible] itself was clearly within the Statute. [illegible] of a condemned criminal was, [illegible] judicial proceeding. If not that, it was [illegible] official proceeding; that could not be [illegible] was presumably a public proceeding. [illegible] said that he should hold it a public proceeding within the meaning of the Statute, if witnesses were admitted as described by the Sheriff, although it might be conducted in the inclosed yard.

Mr. Abbott continued. Then the only question could be whether the speech of the criminal could be considered as made "in the course" of this public official proceeding. It was on this point that defence introduced the testimony to a usage to allow the condemned to speak upon the scaffold. They relied also on his Honor's acquaintance with a custom as old as the system of public capital punishments, of allowing the prisoner to speak. Such a usage, so ancient and so uniform, gave the man condemned to death a quasi right to make an address. Grant that the right was not absolute. Grant that the Sheriff had the right to stop the prisoner, or to limit his time. Notwithstanding, if the Sheriff did not do this, but allowed the prisoner to proceed, his speech was made in the course of the proceeding. In respect even to the arguments of counsel in Court, there were limits to the right of speech. The counsel always spoke by courtesy of the Court. The Court could exclude any points from discussion, or could limit the time which counsel should occupy. But it was not therefore to be pretended that the speech of a lawyer, in arguing a case, was not made "in the course of a judicial proceeding." The test was not whether the party had an absolute right to speak, nor whether the speech was an essential part of the proceeding; nor whether the subject matter was relevant to the proceeding. The simple question was, whether it was a speech duly and regularly made, by permission of the officer conducting the proceeding, and under a usage authorizing it to be made in such a case. If so, it was made "in the course" of the proceeding. The object of the statute was not to throw upon the Press a duty of deciding nice and delicate questions of the right to make this or that speech, at this or that stage of this or that proceeding, but, on the contrary, to give the Press a protection in publishing correct reports of what might be actually said and done, in the orderly and usual conduct of the matter in hand.

Augustus Prentice, for the plaintiff, contended that the statute was never intended to bear so broad a construction as that contended for. The party brought forward for execution was not an actor, nor a participant in the proceeding. He was brought forward to suffer, merely; not to share in the proceedings. He was under no responsibility. He had no official functions to perform in or about the ceremonies of the solemnity. He had no recognizable right of speech. If he was permitted to speak, it was by non-interference of the Sheriff merely, but was no part of the proceeding; no more than if any bystander or witness had interrupted the execution to express his opinion upon the case, and no objection had been made to his speaking. That the speech of the condemned was no part of the proceeding was clearly shown by the fact that it could not by any legal possibility have any influence or effect upon the proceeding. No one could take any notice of what he said. No matter what the prisoner could say, nothing could be done upon it. The execution could not be delayed or postponed. This clearly showed that the speech was not like the argument of counsel, and was not in law any part of the proceeding; it was a mere interruption indulged by sufferance. Counsel cited a case from the 23 Barbour's Reports, where an application for the extradition of a criminal had been made to the Governor, and after he had decided the case an affidavit was made to be used in reference to it. There it was held that there was no privilege, because the Governor had no longer power to act on the affidavit. So in the case of the speech of Donelly, there was no power in any one to act on what he might say.

Justice SLOSSON said the statute was new, and had not received any judicial construction, and he thought it a grave question whether it was intended to bear so broad a construction as the defence claimed. The language of the statute was somewhat obscure. He was inclined to regard it as intended to protect reporters and editors in the publication of such character, but thought that the question was one which ought to go before the General Term. In some respects the best way to carry it up would be on a nonsuit; but the effect of that would be, that, if the General Term should hold the action maintainable, the case must be tried again from the commencement. He did not understand that either side could have any facts to put in on a new trial not now before the Jury. Therefore to save that trouble, he would direct the jury to find on the question of damages merely, and would allow the plaintiff to take a verdict subject to the opinion of the General Term.

The cause was then summed up by the counsel on the question of damages.

Justice SLOSSON charged the jury briefly. He said, that for the purpose of their deliberations they were to consider that the defendants had published a libel on the plaintiff, and one highly calculated to wound his feelings and injure his reputation. The charge was one of the most serious and damaging character that could be made. But they were also to consider that there was no allegation of actual malice against the defendants, and they must, also, consider the effect of the editorial protest accompanying the article. In estimating the damages, they might award for disgrace and injury to feelings, but the case was not one in which they could give exemplary damages.

After a short deliberation the Jury returned, stating that they found a verdict for the defendants; and being polled, all expressed their individual concurrence. Objection being taken to the form of this verdict as irregular, the Court having directed the Jury to assess the plaintiff's damages, the verdict was changed to one of six and a quarter cents in favor of plaintiff.

J. Senter and Aug. Prentice for plaintiff; Benj. N. Abbott and Lyman Abbott for defendants.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Hoffman.

OPINION IN THE PETTIGREW CASE.

John Pettigrew vs. The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York.—Motion by the defendants to set aside and vacate a judgment and all proceedings subsequent thereto. R. Busteed for the motion, and G. Dean in opposition.

HOFFMAN, J.—The plaintiff recovered a judgment against the defendants on the 15th of January, 1859, for the sum of $25,700 28, besides costs. About $57,765 of this amount was for the performance of a contract for regulating Sixty-third street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues.

The contract on which this part of the claim was founded was dated the 26th day of November, 1852, and in the copy annexed to the complaint, provided for payment for the work as follows:

"For all work which shall be blasted, and broken to a suitable size for carting, including its removal and deposit in embankment, the sum of sixty cents per cubic yard shall be paid, and twelve cents per cubic yard for earth excavated, and forty-two cents per cubic yard for earth filling; culverts, per running foot, $1."

The plaintiff sued the defendants upon this alleged contract, alleging performance of the work as stipulated, and demand and refusal of payment.

The defendants, by answer, insisted upon the fact of a discontinuance of the work contracted for, upon the ground being taken for the Central Park, and notice of such discontinuance being given.

The case was referred, was litigated, and judgment given in favor of the plaintiff, from which no appeal has been taken.

It is therefore sufficient to observe, that if the referee was wrong upon the point contested and decided by him, the error cannot now be redressed; plainly it cannot be done in this mode.

The present application is made upon the ground that the original bid of the plaintiff was 22 cents per cubic yard for the earth filling, instead of 42 cents; that the original record of the contract made in a book kept in the Street Commissioner's office has been altered by an erasure of twenty and substitution of the word forty; and that it appeared by a copy of the estimates transmitted to the Common Council by the Street Commissioner, Oct. 29, 1852, stating his award to the plaintiff of the contract, that 22 cents was the actual amount.

By that document the then Street Commissioner reported that the contract was awarded to the plaintiff as the lowest bidder. It appears upon its face that the bid of the plaintiff was for excavating earth, per cubic yard, (250 yards,) 12 cents; for filling earth, per cubic yard, (35,000 yards,) 22 cents; for excavating and removing rock, per cubic yard, (500 yards,) 60 cents; and for culverts, per running foot (180 feet,) $1 per foot. The aggregate of the bid amounted to $8 197.

There were thirteen other bidders, whose offer for the filling earth, per cubic yard, varied from thirty cents to sixty-nine cents. Four of these offers were from forty-nine cents upwards. The lowest aggregate of the other bidders was $10,650. The highest was $24 806 50.

The additional charge of 20 cents upon the earth filling of 35 000 yards would add $7,000 to the above amount of the plaintiff's offer, making it $15,197. Four of the offers would, then, exceed it in the aggregate, the lowest of such four being $17,832 50.

It is sworn to, and not contested, that the habit of the plaintiff in every extensive contract of a similar nature with the Corporation, was not to take a copy of the contract; that he did not do so at this time; that he or his attorney obtained the copy annexed to the complaint, upon commencing the action, which was certified by the Deputy Street Commissioner. The contracts are entered in a book kept in the office.

It is also shown, that upon the trial the original book was produced in evidence before the referee, and produced by the plaintiff's attorney.

The plaintiff in his affidavit to oppose the present motion, denies any knowledge, information or suspicion of any alteration in the contract, "or that it was not in exact accordance with his bids for the said work," until he saw the communication of Mr. Lowell, of the 21st day of February, 1859; that he has no knowledge or suspicion of the person by whom the alteration was made, if any was made; that the contract was never seen by him since its execution; that he has no copy of his bid, nor has he seen it since it was deposited, nor has he ever seen the original bids of his competitors; that if the same have been abstracted from the office it was without his knowledge or privity. That he does not know what his bid actually was for such work; that he supposed at the time of the commencement of this action that the assessment of said work had been made in accordance with the bid under which the contract had been awarded to him, and that he had no knowledge to the contrary now.

That for thirty years he has had such contracts with the defendants, and never been in the habit of retaining copies of his bids or contracts, but to rely on the original records.

He further says: "That the price contained in said contract for said work is now, as it was at the time of its execution by him, as he verily believes;" and he states positively, and of his own knowledge, "that no alteration, change or erasure, has ever been made therein by deponent, or at his instigation, or with his privity or assent."

It appears also that the original bids cannot, after diligent search, be found in the proper office.

Mr. Lowell swears to an inspection of the record of the contract, and his belief that the erasure and alteration were fraudulently made.

The book was produced, and inspected by consent. It is sufficient to say that, with the affidavit, there is ground for inquiring into the fact, at least, if any further inquiry can be allowed in the case.

By the Revised Statutes, no judgment in any Court of Record shall be set aside for irregularity on motion, unless such motion be made within one year after the time such judgment was rendered. (2 R. S., 359, sec. 2.)

The Code (sec. 174) is more comprehensive: "The Court may, in its discretion, and upon such terms as may be just, at any time within one year after notice thereof, relieve a party from a judgment, order or other proceeding taken against him, through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect."

It can scarcely be contended that when a trial has been had, the Court under this section would grant relief, when it would not grant a motion for a new trial under such circumstances.

The decision in this Court of Levy vs. Joyce (1 Bosworth's Rep., 622) does not conflict with this view. Though an excusable omission, and under very special circumstances, a claimant upon a fund who had omitted to produce his proofs at all upon a trial involving the rights of many others, was admitted after judgment.

So in the important and pertinent case of Bell vs. Kelly, (2 Harrison's N. J. Rep., 270,) there was a judgment by default, and some proceedings were taken to amerce the Sheriff. There was then an application to open the judgment on an affidavit that the defendant had been an indorser on several notes of the firm of Tyson & Co., and supposed, when sued, that the action was on one of such notes; that about the 17th day of May, 1830, (after judgment,) he for the first time discovered that one of such firm had been in the habit of forging his name on several notes; that he believed the note in question was false and forged; that he called on the plaintiff's attorney as soon as his suspicion was aroused, who had refused to let him see the note. The judgment was opened on terms. See also the case cited at page 274.

Now, few points are better settled than this, that a motion for a new trial on the ground of newly-discovered evidence, will not be entertained where the applicant has had the means of procuring the evidence at the former trial, and could have known of its existence then with the use of similar diligence with that which has obtained it subsequently. (Graham and Waterman, vol. 3, 1,036, 1,038.)

Any degree of complicity, however, of the other side, in any fraud, or deception, or misleading, will decide the question, and induce the Court to grant the application.

It is not a justifiable conclusion, upon the papers before me, that the plaintiff participated in, or knew of any such fraud. Nor should I be warranted in saying that the mere fact of the extra amount being $7,000, raises a presumption of fraud in him. He is entitled, in law and practice, to the benefit of the considerations that he has never kept a copy of his bid, believes the contract corresponded with it, and that the average of all the bids for filling earth is thirty-eight cents, and the average of the total amounts for the whole is about $14,162.

But the plaintiff, in vindicating his own integrity, presents a case for the relief of the defendants. He is to be assumed as having offered a bid at 42 cents for earth, making his aggregate amount for the work $15,197, instead of $8,197. There were, then nine lower bidders. The contract was made by the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty, through the Street Commissioner, on a misstatement or mistake of the fact. The contract sanctioned and intended to be made was for 22 cents. The contract actually made was unfounded in fact, and in my opinion void. The plaintiff meant and offered to take the contract for forty-two cents. The Corporation never acceded to this, but did agree to a contract, which the plaintiff never agreed to. This mutual and fundamental mistake of the very basis of the contract is ample ground for relief, and of the power of the Court to give relief I entertain no doubt. (Levy vs. Joyce, 1 Bosworth's Rep., 622.)

But the plaintiff has performed the work, and has got a judgment after litigation, that he is entitled to payment. There does not seem to be any justice or good reason for giving relief beyond correcting the error in this particular.

My impressions are, as the Code permits the fixing of terms and conditions, that the plaintiff has a right to put himself in the place of the actual lowest bidder, Mr. ——, whose proffer was for $10,650.

The consequence of this would be a reduction upon the judgment of $2,453, with interest from the 1st day of May, 1857.

Still, I doubt whether I can do anything regularly under this application, but to set aside the judgment and report of the Referee. Whether the cause may be proceeded upon under the order of reference, or what other course may be regular, is for counsel to determine.

Order to set aside and vacate the judgment entered in this cause, with the report of the Referee, and all proceedings subsequent to such judgment, without costs.

On settling the order, the counsel may bring before me the above considerations, if so advised.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Hilton.

THE SUNDAY LIQUOR CASES.

This case was again taken up, and Officer Hyatt, the officer making the complaint, was called, and testified that on the 23d of August, 1857, the day on which the offence was alleged to have been committed, the defendant sold liquor and kept his door open for that purpose.

The State then rested, and Mr. Smith moved that the case be dismissed, on the ground that the offence was not proven. The Court thought that there was some evidence to go to the jury, and ordered that the case proceed.

Mr. Smith then went to the jury, without calling a witness, contending that the officer had not stated that liquor—spirituous liquor—had been sold, only beer. Such a beverage was not liquor. Although the officer had testified that he saw liquor there, and had seen many persons going in and out of the premises, corner of Twenty-eighth street and Seventh-avenue, still that was not sufficient evidence that liquor was sold on that Sabbath, and the defendant must be acquitted.

Mr. Wilcoxson summed up for the State. He contended that although no other liquor had been sold on that day but ale,—that alone, according to adjudicated authorities, was sufficient. In supporting this argument, 3d of Parker was quoted.

The cases of Peter Hynes and Wm. Hockhery were then disposed of, and a verdict in each case was found for the State. The latter of these parties was tried and fined on three separate charges.

SPECIAL TERM.

Montiguffe vs. Musti.—Motion denied, with $10 costs, to abide event.

Munroe vs. Potter.—Motion denied.

Board of Aldermen.

DANIEL E. DELAVAN APPOINTED CITY INSPECTOR—PROPOSALS FOR CLEANING THE STREETS.

Previous to the meeting of the Board of Aldermen, yesterday, a caucus of the Democratic members was held, at which it was resolved to confirm the nomination of Daniel E. Delavan for City Inspector. That something of this kind was to be done was extensively bruited sometime before the Board met, and when the doors of the Aldermen's Chamber were thrown open, "the people" thronged in and speedily filled the space appropriated to spectators.

As soon as the reading of the minutes was completed, Alderman BOOLE moved that the Special Committee to which the nomination of Daniel E. Delavan for City Inspector had been referred be discharged. It was carried.

Alderman BOOLE called for the reading of the communication from the Mayor nominating Mr. Delavan. It was read.

Alderman BOOLE then offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Board do advise and consent to the appointment of Daniel E. Delavan to the office of City Inspector for the City of New-York, and that the nomination of said Daniel E. Delavan, made by his Honor the Mayor, May 30, 1859, be and is hereby confirmed.

Alderman ADAMS hoped it would be adopted unanimously; it had been a long time coming.

Alderman BOOLE supposed it would be adopted with perfect unanimity.

Alderman ADAMS intimated that "they" had seen Delavan probably.

Alderman GENET said he was satisfied that the nomination was made with the advice and consent of the Board, eulogized Mr. Delavan, and declared that he would vote for him.

The resolution was adopted unanimously. Before the result was announced a yell arose from an individual in the audience. He made his exit before Mr. Gallagher, the Sergeant-at-Arms, could reach him.

A communication from the Mayor asking that the Common Council take early action in relation to contracts awarded by the Croton Aqueduct Board was referred.

Remonstrances from the rector, church-wardens and vestrymen of Trinity Church against the widening of Rector-street and Trinity-place, and from certain property owners against the extension of Church-street, were referred to the Committee on Streets. A petition of property owners in favor of the extension was disposed of in the same way.

A proposal to clean the streets of the City for $260,000 per annum, signed by Robert A. Smith, was referred to a Special Committee. A proposal from Alexander Hemphill, Albert S. Nesmith and associates to do the same work for $285,000 per annum was referred to the same Committee.

A resolution, directing the City Inspector to report to the Board at its next meeting the amount annually expended during the years 1856, 1857 and 1858 for cleaning the streets of this City was adopted.

Aldermen TUOMEY, GENET and DARRAGH were appointed a Committee to confer with a Committee of the Board of Supervisors, with regard to the erection of a County Jail.

A communication was received from the Counsel to the Corporation, setting forth his legal opinion that either branch of the Common Council can have its printing done by whomsoever it pleases, without the consent of the other Board.

The Board adjourned to Thursday.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

COMMON COUNCIL.—A regular meeting of the Brooklyn Common Council was held last evening, and a large amount of business was transacted, principally in the reception of reports of committees, mostly however of local importance. A report of the Law Committee was adopted, authorizing the Corporation Counselor to employ extra assistance to meet the increased business of that department, the expense not to exceed $1,000 per annum. Also authorizing the Commissioner of Repairs and Supplies to refit the office at an expense not to exceed $250, and the Counselor was voted $100 to complete his library. With these aids and embellishments, it is anticipated that the legal business of the city will be carefully looked after. The Railroad Committee reported that it was expedient, just and proper, that the property holders on Grand-street have a horse railroad over that thoroughfare, and recommended that the Clerk be directed to advertise the usual legal notice of this declaration, as required by the Legislative enactment referring to this subject, and that the Committee receive proposals and report the same. The report was adopted without much opposition, the only objection made being technical. The Mayor sent in a communication with his objections to the passage of a resolution adopted at the last meeting, authorizing the Comptroller to pay all unliquidated claims for the Water Celebration out of the $27,000 authorized by an act of the last Legislature, to be raised for specific purposes. His objections are, that the money so raised cannot be legally appropriated to other purposes. The usual order was made to print the communication and lay it upon the table. At a later hour, a resolution was offered by Alderman MCNAMEE, to authorize the proper officer to raise $5,000 on city bonds to liquidate these claims against the city, which was referred to the Finance Committee for report, as some of the members insisted that the Board could not confer any such authority without a special act of the Legislature or a vote upon the question by the people and approving the same. The Grading and Paving Committee reported in favor of fixing the grade line of Fifth avenue, at the centre of Fifty-seventh-street, the same as heretofore established, and ascend from thence to the centre of Fifty-eighth-street, to an elevation of 123 feet 6 inches above high water, and at Fifty-ninth-street an elevation of 125 feet 8 inches above high water, thence descending to the city line at the rate of one inch in ten feet. The report was adopted. The Assessment Committee, as usual, made a large batch of reports in favor of correcting blunders made by city officials, all of which were adopted. On motion of Alderman CASHOW, B. O'Neil, George N. Mead and C. W. Reilly, Assessors, were designated to estimate the value of the property within the district of assessment laid out by the Common Council for the regrading and paving of Flatbush-avenue, between Eighth and Eleventh avenues. The change of the grade is made to enable the City Railroad Company to run cars to Flatbush from Fulton Ferry.

BRAZILIAN PEBBLE SPECTACLES.
OPTICAL INSTITUTE OF SEMMONS & CO.,

SPECTACLES. SPECTACLES.

SPECTACLES.
TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT.
SEMMONS & CO.'S
PANTOSCOPIC BRAZILIAN PEBBLE
SPECTACLES.

SEMMONS & CO., oculists, opticians and manufacturers of the above celebrated spectacles, beg to announce that they have opened the above store, where they will constantly keep on hand a large and splendid assortment of these newly-invented and sight-preserving glasses. Also, every variety of optical instruments.

The Brazilian pebble is the only true lens that has hitherto been constructed, and is founded on the most scientific principles, in accordance with the philosophy of nature, in the peculiar form of a concavo-convex mirror, and most admirably adapted to the organ of sight, perfectly natural to the eye—affording altogether the best artificial help to the human vision.

It is an established fact that the superiority of these Spectacles over all others is fully corroborated by the large number of testimonials from among the most respectable and intelligent persons in this country.

In the preservation of vision it is incumbent upon the wearer of spectacles to strengthen the organ of sight and protect the retina of the eye from inflammation and diffusion, and to be to the eye as it was when in youth, which can only be attained and which qualities are combined in the Pantoscopic Brazilian-Pebble glasses.

THE ONLY PLACE TO OBTAIN THESE CELEBRATED SPECTACLES IS OF THE MANUFACTURERS, AT
NO. 669½ BROADWAY,
UNDER THE LAFARGE HOUSE.

READ THESE TESTIMONIALS.

No. 46 LAFAYETTE-PLACE, New-York, May 2, 1859.

I have examined some specimens of Spectacles manufactured by SEMMONS & Co. from the Brazilian pebble. The shape of the lens is such as to resemble the cornea, and in this respect presents an important improvement over the lens in ordinary use. The material, also, I consider preferable to glass, inasmuch as it is apt to be more equal in density, as well as harder and more transparent.

J. M. CARNOCHAN,
Professor of Surgery, New-York Medical College, Surgeon-in-Chief to the State Hospital, &c.

FROM VALENTINE MOTT, M. D., PROFESSOR, &c.

This may inform that I have used for three weeks past a pair of the spectacles of Messrs. Semmons & Co., made of the rock crystal, from Brazil. I am very much pleased with them. They are very transparent, and can, I find, be easily ground and polished to suit the desired focus. Perhaps it is fancy, but they appear to me cooler than glass.

V. MOTT.

NEW-YORK, April 20, 1859.

FROM JAMES R. WOOD, M. D., PROFESSOR.

I have examined the Brazilian pebble spectacles manufactured by Messrs. Semmons & Co., and take pleasure in saying that, as far as theory has convinced me, they are admirably adapted to promote comfort and ease to the valuable organ of sight. The Brazilian pebble is hard and homogeneous; the coolness of the lens and the construction give them a preference over all lenses made of glass. I recommend them cheerfully to my friends.

It is situated on an important navigable river; has a first-rate landing, with twenty feet of water in the drought of Summer. The river banks are never overflowed, and the site is unsurpassed for beauty and natural advantages. The title to the property is perfect, and free from every incumbrance. There is on the property an inexhaustible quarry of the best and most beautiful building stone in the West—so pronounced by Government inspectors. In the vicinity are clay beds, from which the finest quality of bricks are made. The climate is perfectly healthy, being wholly free from fever and ague, and disease incident to a new country. The grape is more successfully cultivated in this vicinity than in any other part of the United States, both climate and soil being peculiarly adapted to produce them in the greatest perfection. This property has been kept from market on account of having been held for many years by minor heirs.

Detailed explanations will be given to any substantial men who may wish to make inquiries with a view to purchasing. Address J. J. & L., Box 288 Times Office.

MUSICAL.

THE DRIGGS PATENT PIANO-FORTE,
OR THE VIOLIN PIANO.

It is built upon an iron frame, or bed plate, entirely separate from the case, thus relieving the sounding-board and every other part of the instrument from the strain.

It will remain in tune for many months, and when the strings are settled even for years.

It has convex sounding-boards above and below, like the violin, which are connected together in the same manner, thus making the entire instrument a vibrating shell.

It has greater depth and fullness of tone, and its sostenuto, or power of sustaining the tone has never been equaled, except by instruments of the violin class.

It improves with age and use, becoming more vibratory, and the tone purer and more sonorous.

It is the best piano-forte existing, and is recommended by Gottschalk, Thalberg, and many other celebrated artists and professors. Sole Agents,

FINANCIAL.

LA CROSSE AND MILWAUKEE RAILROAD COMPANY.

ADDRESS TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE LA CROSSE AND MILWAUKEE RAILROAD COMPANY.

Having recently been elected to the office of President of your Company, by your voluntary suffrages, the peculiar circumstances with which I find myself surrounded, as well as those attending the election, seem to make it incumbent upon me to address you.

I have been connected with the La Crosse and Milwaukee Railroad, either as a banker, contractor, or creditor, for the past six years; and I hesitate not to assert, that no one outside of its former directory, and but few in it, know more about its operations and circumstances than myself, from the time of its organization to the present time. Being a bona fide creditor and stockholder in the Company, and believing that if the then existing state of things was permitted to continue for twelve months more, there would be nothing left for either creditor or stockholder to realize upon, four weeks ago I went to New-York City to confer with the stock and bondholders there, as to the business future of the Company. I gave notice of the purpose of my visit through the Press, and when I did so, I was assailed by anonymous communications in the City papers, my motives aspersed and misrepresented in monetary circles, and almost every species of obloquy and detraction visited upon me that the ingenuity or malice of thwarted speculators could devise.

As fast as any of the charges made their appearance in public, I replied to them through the City papers, over my own signature. As soon as it was announced that I was [illegible], with a view to the election of a new Board, that could not be reached or controlled by STEPHEN H. ALDEN, of Albany, N. Y., the name of Mr. ALEXANDER MITCHELL was put up in opposition to mine. When it became known that Mr. MITCHELL had been a recipient of the Corruption Bonds, he was partially hauled off for repairs, and the names of FRANCIS VOSE and CHARLES A. PERKINS substituted. In spite of all this opposition, stimulated as it was by whatever Railroad influence this city had in New-York, I was confronted with by more than one thousand of the stockholders who had been duped and swindled out of their investments by the former managers of this Road, and I take this occasion to say, for the information of the Western resident stockholders, that wide-spread and disastrous as I had reason to believe the misery was which the corrupt and fraudulent mismanagement of this Company had occasioned, yet I had nothing like a correct idea of the extent of the suffering it had caused, until I had the personal conferences to which I allude, with the stockholders. And I am sincerely of the opinion that except those committed for capital offenses, there are but few convicts to be found within the walls of the various Penitentiaries in the Union who have inflicted an equal amount of misery upon the innocent and unprotected, as have some of those who have had this road under their control and direction.

In spite of the opposition made by those who were interested in sustaining the Managers of the Company, I was presented by the unfortunate owners with proxies that represented over four million dollars of the stock.

Upon my arrival in Milwaukee, on Monday, the [illegible] ult., to attend the election of officers, I found the road had been put through the process of a sham and illegal sale, (as I am advised by counsel,) by the Trustee of the Third Mortgage bondholders, and bid off, without the payment of a dollar in money, by the Trustee aforesaid. A new company was partially organized, and an attempt made to change the name of the road—the company's office closed, and the books, papers and safes belonging to it taken into the possession of the President of the new organization. This organization had professed to elect the following Directors: RUSSELL SAGE, LUDLOW A. BATTERSHALL, WILLIAM GOULD, WM. B. GILBERT, [illegible], L. W. WEEKS, N. J. EMMONS, WM. E. SMITH and WM. B. HILL, and these Directors elected RUSSELL SAGE their President.

When the day of the election came, neither the Inspectors of the Election nor the stockholders could gain access to the office of the late Secretary.

At 10 o'clock A. M. the Hon. A. S. SHAW and C. K. WELLS, Esq., two of the Inspectors appointed by the Governor, knocked at the office of the former Secretary to make arrangements for the election, and they found it locked, and could not gain admission. At 11 o'clock CHAUNCEY ABBOTT, Esq., the other Inspector, arrived, and the three Inspectors met at the office of E. H. GOODRICH, Superintendent of the road under SELAH CHAMBERLAIN's lease, and were shown a legal opinion, drawn up and signed by five resident attorneys, declaring the proposed election illegal, and that the Inspectors had no right to hold it. After listening to a discussion of several hours, between the counsel of the Third Mortgage and the counsel of the Stockholders, the Inspectors—two of whom rank amongst the best lawyers in the State, and one of whom had just retired, with much credit, from the office of Circuit Judge—decided they had the right to hold the election; thus declaring their opinion of the worthlessness of the pretended sale, and the organization under it. Finding it impossible to gain access [illegible] of the Company's rooms, the Inspectors proceeded to open the polls, and hold the election, in the street, in front of the Secretary's office. At this election, the ticket headed by myself, received [illegible] majority. The pretended new company closed up the Secretary's office against the wishes of those having a right to vote there in the afternoon; and about [illegible] votes were polled for our ticket, on the stoop of the office of the Secretary, and in the open air. Those wishing to vote were then invited into the office of the Horicon Railroad Company, where the election was continued till 10½ o'clock at night, and the following persons chosen Directors: NEWCOMB CLEVELAND, HENRY C. CABELL, [illegible], JOHN LOCKWOOD, ORVILLE ODDIE, [illegible], GEO. W. PRATT, ALBERT E. HARRIS, [illegible]. Against this ticket there were less than six hundred votes cast; and its friends had over twelve thousand votes in reserve, that might have been thrown for it, but for want of time and because it was unnecessary, they were not put in. The following day, at the urgent solicitation of outsiders, and against my remonstrations, the polls were again opened by the Inspectors, and seven votes cast by DANIEL WELLS, Jr., for the following ticket, which, with the votes received the day before, gave it [illegible] votes: DANIEL WELLS, Jr., CYRUS D. DAVIS, [illegible], E. FERGUSON, J. P. MCGREGOR, E. S. KIRKLAND and SAMUEL C. WEST.

Since the election, I have seen a publication in the newspapers of this City, which seems to be authorized, stating that Mr. ALEXANDER MITCHELL had proxies sent him for about 30,000 votes, which he did not consider it worth his while to cast, although he was present while the election was progressing.

In New-York, proxies were collected for Mr. MITCHELL by the friends of the former Fiscal Agent, ALDEN, and the late President STANTON, from the stockholders, on the ground of his high character and standing, and the strong disposition he felt to aid those non-resident capitalists who had been inveigled into investing in the road, and had been so deeply abused and injured by it, and that he would exert himself to have them realize something from their ruinous investments. On my arrival at Milwaukee, I found Mr. MITCHELL one of the most active men in favor of the third mortgage sale and organization—a sale which, if held good, will annihilate all the interests of every species of stockholders and creditors, except the mortgage and judgment creditors of the road. The scheme was devised by STEPHEN H. ALDEN, over eighteen months ago, for that purpose.

With the coöperation of Mr. MITCHELL, the hands of Messrs. CABELL, ODDIE, and myself, (for we four had about all the proxies on the ground,) might have been strengthened, and jointly we would have represented at the election, the votes of eight-tenths of all the shareholders. I allude to this circumstance not for the purpose of passing criticism upon the inconsistency between the professions of those collecting proxies for Mr. MITCHELL in New-York, and his actions here; but to show the non-resident cash stockholders, and the farm-mortgage stockholders in this State, that my representations to them have been verified, and my actions consistent with my professions.

On the [illegible] of May, an attempt was made by the friends of the late Board and the third-mortgage bondholders, to get up still another organization. An effort has been made to torture a visit by me to the room I was informed Mr. SAGE, the President of the pretended third-mortgage organization, was in, to demand of him the books and papers of the Company in his possession, into a recognition of their organization.

The charge that I participated or took any part in, or recognized in any manner, the proceedings of that Board is untrue. That Board professed to make officers of the names on the ticket which received [illegible] out of nearly [illegible] votes cast at the election. DANIEL WELLS, Jr., was made President, and SAMUEL C. WEST, Secretary and Treasurer. The pretence set up for this Board is, that some of the Directors on the ticket with myself were not stockholders at the time of their election. The charge is groundless, for every Director on our ticket was not only a stockholder at the time of his election, but part of them had been so for years before. But if it were not so, the election of persons who were not stockholders would render the election voidable only, and not void; and persons so elected, and organizing under their election, would constitute a de facto Board, which could only be ousted by information in the shape of a quo warranto. The Board headed by DANIEL WELLS, Jr., has, therefore, no rights whatever.

On the [illegible] day of May, a card appeared in the Milwaukee Sentinel, from W. P. STANTON, late President, &c., claiming that all the elections which had been held were illegal, because they had not been held in the office of the Secretary of the Company! The bare perusal of this card affords ample evidence of the author's own estimation of the falseness of the pretences set up, and the reason given that the election was void, because it "was unsatisfactory" to his Board, was simply ridiculous. Mr. STANTON and his friends, the third Mortgage bond claimants, had the keys of the Company's office, and would not give the Inspectors admission; and because they could not gain admission and were compelled to hold the election on the front steps of the office, in a burning sun, therefore the election "was void," and Mr. STANTON and his Board hold over another year! The sequence from the premises stated, I think, will be generally admitted by the stockholders, to be among the latest improvements in logical deductions; and to be only equaled by some of the brilliant fiscal feats which have characterized the previous history of this Company.

The best legal advisers assure me, that the election notice was only intended to indicate a locality for holding the election, and the title to the place was immaterial. Conceding that the title had changed, the locality was the same indicated by the notice, and was the only place where an election could have been held.

On the [illegible] of May, as its President, I instituted proceedings to reclaim the records and seal of the Company, and had issued and delivered to the Sheriff of Milwaukee County the necessary papers for that purpose. The Sheriff took two safes and their contents; and soon after E. G. RYAN, the counsel of the late Stanton and Alden Board, and of the Sage organization, appeared and presented to the Deputy Sheriff in charge, a pretended withdrawal of the suit, to which was affixed the seal of the Company, and demanded possession of the safes from the Deputy Sheriff. The possession was refused. On Saturday, the Sheriff was required to seize the third safe described in his papers, and about 8 o'clock P. M., he went to the Chamberlain building, so called, for that purpose. When he arrived, Messrs. RYAN and EMMONS, Attorneys—EMMONS, the Attorney of CHAMBERLAIN, and RYAN, the attorney of SAGE and STANTON—and E. H. GOODRICH, CHAMBERLAIN'S Superintendent, were there; and also about one hundred laborers, consisting mainly of the employes of CHAMBERLAIN, and the pretended new company. Some of the laborers were armed with clubs and other persuasive implements. The Sheriff took possession of the building and safes, and I left two private watchmen to see that the books were not removed from the safes and building, and spirited away during the night. One of the watchmen, being known as such, was twice ejected from the building, and had to leave.

On the 30th of May the Sheriff delivered up the safes to the new Company, they having given an "undertaking," and the Sheriff refused to examine and invoice the contents of the safes! Thus, the safes, with their keys and contents, are in the hands of the disputed third mortgage bond organization.

On the 21st of April last, I commenced a suit in the Circuit Court of Columbia County, charging the old Board of Directors and others with a conspiracy to defraud the stockholders by this third mortgage, and charged collusion between BARNES, the Trustee, and the Stanton-Alden Board. An injunction was issued and served on the [illegible] of that month, enjoining the sale.

The Trustee then adjourned the sale to the 21st of May, and I went to New-York to confer with the non-resident stockholders, and obtain proxies enough to give a different complexion to the new Board of Directors. While I was East, the old Directors, and others implicated, who wished to indorse their own character, piled up affidavits so high that my counsel could not see a way over them to sustain the injunction, and about the 18th of May, and before my return to Wisconsin, they consented it should be dissolved,—but the suit was not discontinued, and is still pending.

The sale took place on the 21st day of May without any new sufficient advertisement after the dissolution of the injunction. On this account, as well as on several others, I am assured by able counsel that the sale is void. It may be proper, perhaps, for me to remark here, that within a day or two it has been intimated to me that for the purpose of intimidating and thwarting me in my endeavors to serve your interests, a scheme is on foot to have me arrested for perjury, on account of my swearing to the allegations made in the bill filed by me. The stockholders need have no fears on this account if such proceedings are instituted, for I can sustain my complaint by three witnesses to every one they can bring against it.

In connection with this subject, it is perhaps proper for me to state a fact which has reached my ears, and from which the stockholders can draw their own conclusions. I am informed by one of the early directors of this Company, that some of the old directors threatened to place still further obstacles in the way of the sale on the 21st of May, and to appease them and have the sham sale come off, so great was the anxiety of the members of the Stanton-Alden Board and the Milwaukee and Minnesota Company, they pretended to quit claim for this Company to Messrs. KNEELAND and JAMES LUDINGTON the depot grounds donated by Colonel GEO. H. WALKER some years ago to the Company, and situated in the Fourth and Fifth Wards of this city. A previous like transfer of this property the United States District Court recently decided was void, and that the title thereof was held in trust for the stockholders and creditors. This property has been estimated to be worth from $150,000 to $200,000.

I am informed by the same authority, that the two Companies, in addition to this conveyance, guaranteed to protect BYRON KILBOURN, JAMES LUDINGTON, E. H. GOODRICH, EDWIN TOWNSEND and MOSES KNEELAND, from all suits now pending, or that might be brought against them, for any of their conduct or alleged mal-practice as Directors of this Company, or for liabilities for omissions of duty as such Directors. Why JACKSON HADLEY was not included in the indemnity bonds, and furnished with a certificate of character too, I am not advised. I will not intimate that it may possibly be true that the influence of ex-members of Congress was sufficient to hold such action at bay until the alleged promised consideration for land grant votes in the House of Representatives were made good by Mr. HADLEY. But whether it was or not, the stockholders will understand, if this information is true,—and I have every confidence in it,—that the Stanton-Alden Board, and the third mortgage, or the Sage-Alden-Chamberlain organization, have shown their zeal for the interests of the farm mortgage and other stockholders in a very equivocal way by granting absolution to five of the wealthiest and most active and censurable members of the old Board of Directors.

When Mr. W. P. STANTON was elected President of this Company, he made the streets of Milwaukee vocal with his protestations that those Directors who had wasted the substance of the Company, and got unjustly wealthy out of it, should be prosecuted, and their ill-gotten gains reclaimed for the stockholders. To this end it was represented the services of E. G. RYAN, Esq., had been secured—circulars were sent to the corruption bondholders by Mr. [illegible], Vice-President, demanding their return—and the names of even the Directors were given who were present and voted to issue the corruption bonds proper, as well as those which were known as the "Barstow Corruption Bonds," and who had received the Company's bonds without proper authority or consideration, and were liable for the consequences of their votes to the stockholders.

Those who originated, and under whose auspices the Stanton Board was organized, and those who knew the interest STEPHEN H. ALDEN had in discouraging prosecutions to recover monies or property fraudulently obtained from the Company, will not be at a loss to conjecture why all the threats and promises of President STANTON, and Directors SMITH and MCGREGOR, and the street-vaporings of Attorney RYAN, ended as they began, in a barren display of words. The Governor of this State was severely censured publicly and privately, by STANTON and his interested friends, because he would not transfer to the Company the land they claimed for building the sixty miles of road west of Portage City, and thus, as they averred, furnish them with material aid to carry out their professed intentions of prosecuting and punishing those who had been doing injustice to the Company. Within one year from the time these professions are made, Mr. STANTON is found making earnest endeavors to have the Company pass into the hands of the owners of the third mortgage, and thus not only extinguish the interest of the stockholders and most of the creditors of the road, but, establish, as their lawyers contend, a Lethe that is to wash the former managers clean in reputation and remove all pecuniary liabilities for past misdeeds.

I submit to your judgment whether the exigency that would change the professed line of Mr. STANTON's policy from good to bad, so suddenly and flagrantly, does not carry with it its own comment, and spare me the necessity of wasting words upon it? Do fair and legitimate business transactions require such transparent concessions to cover wrongs?

When the Third Mortgage-holders came to foreclose this mortgage, by which all the property and rights of the corporation and of the Stockholders were to be swept away (as they assumed,) they employed E. G. RYAN, Esq., the Attorney of Stanton and the Company, to conduct the proceedings against the Company. The unconstitutional law by which the contract of the Company was to be nullified, and the rights of creditors and stockholders were to be sacrificed, was, as I have been informed and believe, concocted by the advice and approval of the old Board of Directors, and carried into effect by the aid of the Attorney of the Company colluding with the Trustee and Bondholders under the Third Mortgage. More conclusive proof of the corrupt character of this mortgage and the knavish purposes to which it was intended to be applied, could not be furnished even if one of the parties concerned were to testify against himself.

I have thus endeavored to give you a concise summary of the events, touching this Company, which have transpired within the last sixty days. Not having access at this time to the books of the Company, I am not able to give you any detailed statement of the precise condition of its affairs. I have had prepared by an experienced accountant the annexed analysis of the three last reports of this Company, to which I wish to call the particular attention of the Stockholders and the public at large. If the three consecutive annual reports of any other Railroad Company on earth can furnish a parallel to the following, I should like to have them produced:

Bad as this showing is,—and the condition of the Company is no doubt full as bad as it is represented to be in the reports;—I am of the opinion that something may yet be saved for the stockholders, if what there is left of the insolvent skeleton is properly husbanded, and some of the pretended but fraudulent liabilities cut off. From the light now before me, I shall advise the Company to contest and have set aside:

1. The two millions of third mortgage bonds under which the foreclosure has taken place, and which I have already charged in a bill in chancery as being fraudulently issued, and for which I have reasons for believing the Company has never realized five cents on the dollar.
2. The one million of bonds issued to bribe public officers and lobby-men, known as Corruption Bonds.
3. The one million of bonds of a like character to the above, and issued for like purposes, known as the Barstow Bonds.
4. The one million of bonds called the Second Mortgage Bonds, on the Eastern Division of the road.
5. The second issue of Land Grant Bonds, amounting to $1,500,000.
6. The issue of $[illegible],000 on the Second Land Grant Mortgage.
7. The judgment of SELAH CHAMBERLAIN, amounting to over $700,000, and his lease, which is a damage to the interest of the stockholders still more than the amount of the judgment.
8. And the prosecution and setting aside of all other fraudulent or dishonest liabilities, which I shall discover on getting the books and papers of the Company in my possession.

To carry out these and other reformatory measures, that a further and more minute investigation into the affairs of the Company may develop the need of, I shall require and hope to receive the countenance and coöperation of the stockholders. In my own behalf, I pledge my most earnest endeavors, and whatever of energy, means or character I may possess, towards bringing order out of the almost hopeless chaos into which the affairs of the Company seem involved.

My efforts to make a change in the direction and management of this Company have met with a bitter and formidable opposition, both in this city and New York, from railroad speculators and their employes and dependants. In this city the pretended boards headed by STANTON, WELLS and SAGE, and the organization of CHAMBERLAIN, the lessee, exhibit a unity of action and oneness of purpose which indicate with sufficient distinctness that the old firm of CHAMBERLAIN & ALDEN, with the addition of SAGE, WELLS and others, are at the bottom of the scheme or schemes now in vogue. Precisely what all their schemes are, I am not advised; but I am told of one which I deem it my duty to caution the stockholders against. It is that of allowing this road, after it shall have been legally sold on this third mortgage, to be consolidated with, or pass into the hands of the Milwaukee and Mississippi, and the Milwaukee and Watertown, and the Watertown and Madison Roads.

The La Crosse road forms the main trunk line of Wisconsin, and passes over a route which possesses twice the strength of any other railroad route in the State. Deplorably as it has been managed and abused, it has not, in my judgment, become reduced to that low condition yet that it need entirely destroy its innocent stockholders, whose means gave it being, and whose returns thus far have been most scanty and inadequate. I think there is yet sufficient of the road, if properly husbanded, to have it pay its honest debts and make its stock in some degree remunerative. But it has been too much impoverished by plunder to enable it to shoulder and carry along two other roads that abuse have made equally poor, and which are naturally not half as valuable. If the three railroads should pass into the hands of one set of owners, it would destroy them as competing lines,—place them all on a level—and thus deprive this road of its superior advantages over all others. Besides, if these roads should all pass into the same hands, and be controlled by the same owners, it would establish a huge and odious monopoly in the State, in the hands of a few unprincipled speculators, sufficient to rival the sovereign power of the State itself; overawe legislatures, courts and governors; and control elections and perpetuate the social and political corruption which has made the name of Wisconsin a bye-word in all lands. It would also cause an increase in the tariff of rates for both passengers and freight—that is now already too high—cripple the commerce of Milwaukee and the business of the interior towns, and perhaps force a considerable share of the carrying trade of the Upper Mississippi over the Illinois roads from Dunleith or Fulton to Chicago.

The prominent men in the Sage organization are the principal managers of the Milwaukee and Mississippi Road—a road that is running more for the benefit of Illinois and Chicago, to-day, than it is for Wisconsin and Milwaukee—though I am told it is under the control of Milwaukee men, and its construction was aided by Milwaukee capital and Milwaukee City credit.

There is another project which the Sage-Chamberlain-Alden organization is endeavoring to enforce, that will meet with the unqualified opposition of the regular Company, and that is, the change of its name to the Milwaukee and Minnesota Railroad Company. I cannot perceive how a change of name will relieve the Company from any portion of the odium which its past mismanagement has caused to attach to it. It would be a felon's dodge only, so far as the Company is concerned, and in view of its past management, perhaps not inappropriate; but there is an implied disrespect and slur upon La Crosse City and County in it that is undeserved. I am told that the project of this road originated with a distinguished citizen of La Crosse, the late lamented Gov. BURNS; that the city has ever been the fast friend of the Company; and that its friendship has been repaid only with an inconvenient location of its dépôt, in order to aid some Directors in a rival town-lot speculation in what was known as North La Crosse, and in a town on the Minnesota side of the Mississippi, known as La Crescent. It seems to me that La Crosse, and not the Company, is the party that has had reason to complain of the use and abuse both of its name and its local interests.

In conclusion, I beg to address a few plain words to the citizens of Milwaukee: You have the finest site for a city on the western shore of Lake Michigan; you have the best bay and harbor, and the shortest route to the Mississippi to be found on the westerly side of the lake. In twenty-two years your city has grown till it is said to be one of about 50,000 inhabitants. It has three railroads running from it into the interior, and two of them to the western limits of the State. In aid of these roads it has involved itself to the large amount of about one and a half millions of dollars. These three roads have been built and put in operation by Milwaukee men and controlled by Milwaukee influences. They should have been built, equipped and put in good running order for about $18,000 per mile. They have cost from $35,000 to $50,000 per mile. Where has this immense margin gone? Who has got it?

About 25,000, or one-half the inhabitants of Milwaukee, are industrious, frugal, debt-paying Germans. With one or two ignoble exceptions, none of this large class of your fellow-citizens have been implicated in the railroad mismanagement and frauds which have so deeply injured the reputation of your city. Of the other half of the inhabitants, full 15,000 are represented to be foreign born citizens, of Irish, English, French, Swiss and Norwegian origin. To their credit be it spoken, with but one exception, none of them are named as being responsible for the results of your ruinous railroad policy. The remaining two-fifths, or 10,000 inhabitants, is said to be about the number of Americans in the city. Of these, the laborers, mechanics, manufacturers and merchants have had but little to do with railroads, except to vote loans to them and pay taxes to keep down the interest on the securities loaned. These several classes comprise, with less than fifty exceptions, all the native born American inhabitants of this city. It is to the mismanagement and indiscretion of these less than fifty persons, which I have not enumerated, and who figure most conspicuously around your fashionable resorts, and in your public enterprises, that you are indebted for the abuse of trust funds and the bad credit in which your city and its railroads have fallen. They are to be found around your Banks, Insurance Companies, Law offices, and other places where schemes are devised to draw money, in the easiest manner possible, from the hand of productive industry.

They aspire to be your "leading citizens," and, under their lead, I think you all will admit you have been led into serious difficulties. They have their bickerings and quarrels among themselves, but when a great scheme offers like the land grants or the third mortgage foreclosure, or the consolidation of all your principal roads to be run and governed by themselves, they are a unit and work harmoniously together. Their "style" is to buy when they cannot coax, flatter or bluff their projects through; and, bribing your public officers, they repeatedly describe as "propitiating them with pecuniary compliments." The 6,000 farmers who have imperiled their homesteads in Railroads under these men's control, and the non-resident capitalists who have loaned or invested over ten millions of dollars in your roads, have had enough of their management, and would like to see something in return that bears the color of their money. Would not your tax-payers also like to be relieved from being annually taxed to pay the interest upon, and by and by the principal of, the city bonds which have been intrusted to these men to aid the public works under their control? Are not the requirements of the farm mortgage, and the non-resident cash stockholders to realize something from the large amounts they have risked, both just and reasonable?

There is not a Railroad leading out of this city which ought not to pay a rich dividend upon its honest and legitimate cost. But they all pay nothing, or next to nothing, to the stockholders. Why? Because the entire amount of the necessary capital to construct and equip them has been stolen or squandered by the managers who had them in charge. In the case of this Company more than three times the amount necessary to construct and equip the road has been sunk to the stockholders. To those of you who have witnessed the sudden manner in which vast fortunes have been acquired by those who have figured prominently in your railroads,—while the roads themselves have been stricken with bankruptcy,—I presume it will be no mystery why past transactions are desired to be buried in third mortgage foreclosures. Retribution and restitution are sometimes unpleasant visitors.

I have thus deemed it my duty to partially point to the source of the principal opposition to the present management of this Company; and to indicate the motives that stimulate it.

For four years I have been engaged in a contest with the former managers of this road, to get from them the earnings of my life, that were locked up in the road, and which they did their utmost to retain. I succeeded; and in the controversy gained much experience, that will be useful in conducting a contest for the benefit of the creditors and stockholders. The plunderers of this Company are aware of this, and they will doubtless continue to make up in calumny and detraction, what their position lacks in merit. It is not my intention to be annoyed or frightened from my purpose of protecting the best interests of the Company, by any side issues that may be sprung upon me.

I shall, at all times, be happy to meet and confer with any of the farm mortgage or cash stockholders, and creditors, as to the present and future position and prospects of the Company, at my room at the Newhall House, or at the office of the Secretary.

HYATT'S PATENT LIGHTS.

A CARD HAVING BEEN ISSUED TO THE PUBLIC

The law is, that a person who purchases or uses a patented article is equally liable for infringement with the maker of it. The "makers" having fairly notified the "users" of their intention not to pay, the "users" have only themselves to blame if I collect my tariff of them—as I shall certainly do. THADDEUS HYATT.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

THE LAST SLAVER.—The vessel picked up, [illegible], of the Pan of Matanzas, by the [illegible] Cumberland, Captain Stevens, of New-York, and towed lately into Havana, was the bark J. J. Cobb, of New-York. She is an A 2½ vessel of 337 tons register, and was built in Robbinston, Me., in October, 1852, by J. W. Cox. She was a full model, had a poop cabin, and was last surveyed in this City in 1856, at which time she belonged to Mesa Brothers, Navarra & Co. She was afterwards sold in Cuba. She sailed from Havana, Dec. 21, 1857, with 200 puncheons of rum on board, professedly bound to St. Thomas and Antwerp, in command of a Captain PATTERSON. This was the last seen of the vessel until on the 29th of May she was picked up some 20 miles from Matanzas, evidently after landing a cargo of negroes on the coast. She had been but a short time abandoned, as the water in her coppers was still hot. The Cumberland was from Norfolk, and took the vessel in tow, anchoring her inside the entrance to the Harbor of Havana. She was afterwards taken into the harbor by a steam-tug. Her name had been erased from her stern, but the log-book gave the name in full.

COLORED CHILDREN IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The question of the right of colored children to be admitted to the Public Schools came up in the Second Ward, some two weeks since, upon application of JOHN W. [illegible], and a few other colored citizens of the District, to be allowed to send their children, some eight or ten in number, to school No. 34, the number being too small to justify the erection of a separate school for their use. Last evening the matter was finally acted on. Two reports were submitted from a Committee to whom the question had been referred—one a majority report, against, and the other in favor of the application. After a long and a somewhat stormy debate, in which Dr. J. McCUNE SMITH and others participated, by permission of the Board, the majority report was adopted by a vote of eight to two. The names of the minority Committee were Messrs. EDWARD D. PEPPER, who drew the report, and JOHN SIMPSON.

THE PROPOSED EXTENSION OF CHURCH-STREET.—The members of the Committee on Streets, to which the subject of the extension of Church-street, from Fulton to Greenwich streets, which will involve the widening of Trinity-place, Morris and Rector streets, was referred, did not meet yesterday as they were advertised to do, but Mr. NIMS, their Clerk, received the petitions in favor of and remonstrances against the proposed improvement which were presented by the property owners on those streets. Ex-Judge VANDERPOEL, one of the signers of the original petition, withdrew his name therefrom. The Committee will meet again at the call of the Chairman.

FAIR AND STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL.—The ladies of the Presbyterian Church of West Farms will hold their proposed Fair and Strawberry Festival on Wednesday, the 15th, in the village, commencing at 10 A. M., and through the evening, continuing the next day until the sales are made. They promise to exhibit a vast variety of articles, fanciful as well as useful, and many of an exceeding rich quality and make. Conveyances will be at hand at Harlem, for the cars and boat, during the day, and at Mott Haven for the 2½ P. M. train, to convey visitants direct to the fair-ground, and for return to Harlem up to 10 o'clock in the evening. There will be an auction sale each evening.

PARADE OF THE SCOTT LIFE GUARD.—The Scott Life Guard paraded yesterday, under the command of Captain J. H. HOBART WARD, and visited Trenton, N. J., upon invitation of the authorities of that city. The occasion was the celebration of the Seventy-third Anniversary of the birthday of Lieutenant-General SCOTT, from whom the corps takes its name, and of the Fifty-second of his entrance into the army. The command, which was accompanied by Shelton's Band, turned out with full ranks, and attracted a great deal of attention.

CHILDREN DROWNED.—MARY FRANCES DECKER, a child 10 years old, whose parents live at No. 410 Washington-street, was drowned yesterday at the foot of [illegible]-street, North River, while playing with another girl. ELIZA MCKENNY, an infant 11 months old, whose parents live at No. 49 Vandewater-street, accidentally fell into a kettle of water and was drowned. The Coroner held an inquest in each case, and verdicts were rendered accordingly.

DEATH AT THE TOMBS.—WILLIAM B. BENNETT, a man nearly 60 years old, died yesterday at the Tombs. He fell into the dock near the South Ferry, was rescued and taken to the Tombs, where he shortly died from apoplexy.

THE GENERAL ADMIRAL.—The Russian frigate General Admiral will sail finally to-morrow. Her crew were all put on board yesterday.

Police Reports.

ALLEGED POLICY DEALER ARRESTED.—About a year since Frank Webb, of this City, was arrested in New-Jersey for assault, and was convicted, but managed to make good his escape from jail. Yesterday, Chief of Police McDonough, of Hoboken, arrested him on a requisition, but the papers being informal he was discharged by Justice WELSH, before whom he was taken. Shortly after he left the City Hall Court Room a complaint was made against Webb on a charge of selling policies in the Fifth Ward, and a warrant was issued for his arrest. Officer Brower, of the Tenth Ward, took him into custody, last evening, and he was again put under lock and key.

THE DISORDERLY HOUSES IN HOWARD-STREET.—The proprietors, female attaches and visitors—sixty-three persons in all—of the eight disorderly houses in Howard-street, upon which the police made a descent on Sunday evening, were yesterday taken before Justice BRENNAN. Quick work was made of the cases. The proprietors were admitted to bail to answer charges of keeping disorderly houses, the visitors were let off with a reprimand, and the girls were committed to await examination.

THROWING STONES INTO CITY CARS.—Hurling stones into the windows of City cars, and endangering the safety of passengers, has long been a favorite pastime of reckless boys. Yesterday, three boys, each about sixteen years old, were arrested for amusing themselves by throwing stones at an Eighth-avenue car. Justice OSBORN locked them up. They gave their names as Charles Buckland, James Harding and John Foley.

The test of gentility, at least for young men, is certainly the hat. How many young fellows, who would really look well if properly furnished in this respect, are disfigured by an ungraceful, ill-fitting, clumsy hat—the most conspicuous thing about them. Take two good looking young men, twins; put a common hat on the head of one, and on the other's one made by KNOX, of No. 212 Broadway, and they wouldn't look like natives of the same country. Knowing young men have long been aware that the corner of Broadway and Fulton street is the great centre to which all the rays of fashion converge.

My regular Resin Oil Machine I still continue to manufacture as usual, giving applicants the choice. Apply to or address JNO. BUTLER, Nos. 112 Fulton street and 15 Henry-street, Brooklyn.

WE AGREE!—We agree with the New-York Dispatch that GAYETTY'S Medicated Paper is universally used and acknowledged by everybody to be the cheapest, purest, silkiest, smoothest, nicest, and best paper in every respect ever made. In some quarters an impression has prevailed that because it is medicated the healthy should not use it. It is designed as much for the healthy as for the sick, and will not hurt an infant. On the contrary, as experiment will prove, it is beneficial. Depôt No. 41 Ann-street.

MONDAY, June 13—P. M.

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, June 11, 1859, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of June 4:

Decrease in Loans..........$2,047,838
Decrease in Specie..........1,596,036
Decrease in Circulation..........36,526
Decrease in Undrawn Deposits..........3,695,301

Including the Clearing-House operations of the week, which show the inter-exchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

	June 12, 1858.	June 11, 1859.	June 4, 1859.
Capital	$60,717,000	$68,508,657	$68,508,657

Specie	32,790,332	22,132,275	23,728,311
Circulation	7,547,830	8,391,116	8,427,642
Gross Deposits	101,469,525	99,042,966	103,207,062
Exchanged	17,962,648	20,150,431	20,628,166
Undrawn	83,506,887	78,883,535	82,578,836
In Sub-Treasury	5,263,348	2,684,754	4,327,155

The result of the present Bank Average is very near the estimate we gave in our review this morning, based upon the general run of the averages in the leading Banks through the week. The California remittance of May 20 was delivered this forenoon—$1,529,000—and will give the new week a rising average on the Specie line. No export for New-York account is yet reported for the Boston steamer. The Ariel, for Havre, and City of Washington, for Liverpool, sail next Saturday. The Exchanges are quite irregular to-day. The demand from the Import trade is but moderate, and the purchases run according to the preferences of remitters for particular names. The standard for 60 days on London may be called 110@110¼, while business has been done in Bank bills as low as 109⅞, and as high as 110½ net. The short-sight rate remains 110¾ ⅌ cent. Merchants' bills have been done at 60 days, from 109 up to 109½ ⅌ cent., governed by the nature of the shipments drawn against, or the credit of the drawers. The Continental Exchanges continue irregular, but, as a general rule, are made to conform to the relative terms on London. The Money Market opens this week with a steady tone at the rates last quoted. The Stock Brokers are lighter borrowers, and strictly prime indorsed paper outside of Bank is not superabundant.

There was a steady market for Stocks through the early dealings and a further advance in State Securities. The sale of Missouris large, and as high as 86 ⅌ cent., finally closing 85¼@85⅜ ⅌ cent. Tennessees were sold 90⅞@90½ ⅌ cent., and Virginias 97¼@97½ ⅌ cent. In the Railway Shares, the dealings were chiefly in New-York Central, Michigan Guaranteed, Reading and Rock Island. The market opened firm, and continued steady until the afternoon, notwithstanding a pretty free offering of seller's options, but ultimately closed dull, and at a concession of ½ ⅌ cent. on Central, 1@1½ on Michigan Guaranteed, ⅜ on Galena, and ¼@½ on Reading, as compared with Saturday afternoon. Central left off 73⅞ cash, and 72½ seller 30@60 days. Rock Island was steady, Pacific Mail ½ ⅌ cent. better, Panama firm 119½, and Illinois Central Bonds 83½ ⅌ cent. The Bonds of the Erie Company were 3 ⅌ cent. better on the first mortgage, 1 ⅌ cent on the fourth, and a demand for the Sinking Fund at 20 ⅌ cent.

We hear to-day that the affairs of the Cotton house of TRENHOLM BROTHERS & Co., of this City, and of their connexions in Charleston and Liverpool, have been accommodated by an extension on their bills, principally running on Liverpool against Cotton with the shipping documents attached, to suit their application for assistance made to the Charleston Banks and some of the private Banking firms in this City, in the Foreign Exchanges, last week.

The San Francisco Money Market.

From W. T. Coleman & Co.'s Circular.

At length there is a gratifying improvement observable in the receipts of Gold Dust from our own mines. The daily receipts by the Express Companies are becoming quite large, indicating that access to the mining localities situated high up in the mountains has again been restored.

The Victoria Gazette states that the amount of Dust shipped from that port to San Francisco, from April 11 to May 10, was $195,000.

State Finances appear to be in a healthy condition. The balance in the State Treasury to the credit of the different funds was, at the commencement of business on the 16th inst., $543,898 60. The interest due July 1 will be promptly met, and there will still remain a handsome surplus in the Treasury.

The Treasurer of the City and County of San Francisco advertises for proposals for the surrender of 7 ⅌ cent. School Bonds of May, 1854, to the amount of $10,000; bidders stating lowest rates, &c., less coupons Nos. 1 to 12, inclusive, for cash; proposals to be open till Aug. 1, and deposit of 10 ⅌ cent. in coin or bonds being necessary to accompany bids. Also, for like proposals for the redemption of 10 ⅌ cent. Fire Bonds, to the extent of $33,000, less coupons Nos. 1 to 11—proposals open to Aug. 1. In both instances, time allowed till Oct. 20 for surrender of Bonds.

In stocks there is very little doing. There have been some sales of State 7s at about 85c. to parties who hold in expectation of the redemption of some $15,000 in July. San Francisco City and County Bonds are in a little better demand, in consequence of the certainty that the July interest will be paid. Approved City Scrip has advanced 5c. on the dollar in anticipation that the Supreme Court will soon order the issue of bonds. We quote:

California Markets.

From the San Francisco Bulletin, May 19.

In referring to the business of the past fortnight, we again have occasion to notice a continuance of the dull condition of trade, to which we have called attention for the past two months. Since the sailing of the steamer of the 5th inst., but little of interest has occurred requiring especial notice, and, with the exception of a sale of a fresh importation of fine quality Teas, the entire period has been marked by extreme dullness, confining transactions to a mere jobbing business from first hands, and restricting the total trade of the market to limits that contrast most unfavorably with the supplies on hand, while the comparative reduction of stocks has been so trifling as to excite but faint hopes of a revival in prices sufficient to save parties abroad from serious loss.

The jobbing trade, for the supply of the interior of our own State, and for Oregon and British Columbia, has been moderately active; but the general backwardness of the season, after the late severe Winter, has prevented buyers, from the remote sections, from taking goods in any great quantity, and has confined business to the wants of scarcely more than one-half of the population that depend upon this market. Yet, in the main, there have been a considerable quantity of goods moved; but the low prices ruling require sales of large magnitude to aggregate business of much value, or to make effective inroads upon the heavy stocks held by the city trade or by the importers. The wants of country buyers have been met by the jobbers from supplies already in hand, without bringing them into the market as yet for fresh purchases, and with importers particularly the fortnight now closing has been quite inactive, and has afforded no opportunity to place consignments. We can refer to but few articles that stand in better—if in as good—favor as at the date of our last semi-monthly review, in consequence of an entire lack of any disposition to operate. There has been enough business done, however, to reduce jobbers' stocks to an extent that will bring them into the market before long, and more activity can be anticipated with, we trust, a corresponding improvement in prices; but any change for the better is not likely to be of a very important character.

By the latest advices from the Eastward, we learn that the unfavorable features of our market were likely to compel the required attention of shippers to the reckless manner in which they have been for months overtaking the trade of this country. Had they refrained from further shipments after the close of February, some relief would no doubt have been experienced here, but at present the general impression with us is, that they have prolonged their excursion to an extent that leaves little hope for any profitable results before the year's business shall have been brought to a close by the next rainy season.

Boots and Shoes are still ruling within cost and charges, and slow of sale. Corn Meal inactive. Dry Goods are in large supply at unremunerative rates to outside importers. In Provisions but a meagre amount of business has been done. Beef has improved; Bacon inactive and lower; Butter has moved more briskly, without any advance; Hams quiet and hardly asked for; Lard heavy and declining; Pork firm and steady, under a moderate requirement; Oregon sheets not selling. Teas of recent importation and of old stocks have been moved freely, at good rates for choice and desirable qualities. Standard brands of Tobacco are quiet and slow of sale, though firmly held. In Wines, the market for French has a downward tendency; ordinary qualities of Port and Sherry, in wood, are in fair request at good prices; for the finer descriptions, the inquiry is light. In Wooden Ware we learn of no sales. Yeast Powders have been more active, without change in price.

Early in the fortnight there were several arrivals from China, but until within the last few days the number of vessels reaching port has been small, and our remarks have reference to transactions occurring in goods already in store, and embrace but few parcels of most recent receipts. The arrivals have been: The Golden Rocket, Queen of the Seas and Nightingale, from Boston; Sweepstakes, Wanderer, Lookout, Storm King and Derby, from New-York; Comet, James Brown, Santa Claus and Black Prince, from Hong Kong; Metropolis, from Honolulu; Santa Cruz and Flying Dart, from Mazatlan; Surprise, from San Blas; Carmelita, from Guaymas; Georgiana, from Melbourne; Sultan, from Tahiti; Triton, from Hamburgh; and Caesar, from Rio de Janeiro.

Commercial and Financial News by the Fulton.

The Times' City article has the following: "The market continues to be but slightly influenced by the accounts from Italy and France. The report that M. BENEDETTI is about to proceed from Paris on an extraordinary mission to the Germanic Confederation, tends, according to some views, to strengthen the supposition of a possible compromise at no distant date, by means of Russian agency, to terminate the present war."

The Times of the 31st has the following: "There were reports that there will be no disturbance of the Ministry at the opening of Parliament. The exchanges show firmness, and a rise of 28 cent. in Austrian stocks, which occurred this morning at Amsterdam, led to new surmises of the possibilities of some peace arrangements being contemplated through Russian agency. There was only a small withdrawal of gold from the Bank of England. The new French loan is quoted in Paris 1f. premium for the subscriptions for 10f. of Rente, which it was announced will be granted in full, and 60c. premium for the larger applications. Of the latter the allotments are expected to be one-sixth of the amount tendered. Three-fourths of the deposits of subscribers for higher sums than 10f. Rente have already been returned by the Government.
